Vote on death bill due today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Judiciary committees of both houses of the Missouri legislature were busy Tuesday, with the Senate committee recommending higher pay for judges and the House panel moving closer to a vote on a death penalty bill.

The House Education Committee heard testimony Tuesday night supporting a revised formula for determining state aid to public schools.

The pay boost for judges would increase salaries for Missouri Supreme Court judges from $31,500 to $40,000, appellate judges from $30,000 to $37,000, circuit judges from $28,000 to $35,000 and judges of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Corrections from $26,000 to $33,500.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed a judicial pay raise last year, but has indicated he will support such a measure this year.

The House Judiciary Committee, after holding hearings Tuesday on two death penalty bills, was scheduled to vote today on a bill to require the death penalty in 11 instances where killing is unlawful, deliberate and premeditated.

Committee Chairman Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, said he is expecting committee approval of the bill at an executive committee meeting today.

Death would be required for crimes committed in the course of certain felonies and for premeditated murder of police officers or federal and state officials. The list also includes the death penalty when murders are committed by a felon in prison.

In other action, the House Education Committee was told Tuesday Night that a revised formula for state school aid would help school districts with low assessed valuations.

Rep. Wayne Goode, D-Normandy, sponsor of the bill, also said the new formula would aid "urban districts that have urban problems."

School districts now receive aid based on the average daily attendance in their schools.

The proposed new formula would use several other factors such as the number of students whose parents are on welfare in the district.

The City of St. Louis, Kansas City and Bootheel area school districts would gain the most money from the new formula, but 77 of the state's 572 districts would receive less money after two years, William Wasson, deputy commissioner of education, said.

Robby Tyler, president of the Kansas City Board of Education, urged the bill by saying the state needs to take a larger share of the educational costs in urban areas.

She said the Kansas City School district is "in grave financial crisis."

Other groups supporting the bill are the League of Women Voters, Missouri National Education Association and the White House Conference on Education. Gov. Christopher S. Bond also sent an aide to support the measure.

No opponents spoke at the crowded hearing.

In another education matter, the House Appropriations subcommittee on education reviewed the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education's $577.8 million budget request Tuesday.

Bond has recommended the request be cut to $556.4 million with most of the reduction in the school foundation program and vocational education.

Malden approves 2 issues

MALDEN — Voters of Malden approved two bond propositions and failed to approve a third by three votes in a special election Tuesday.

Proposition No. 1, to issue general obligation bonds to the amount of $50,000 for constructing, extending and improving streets, passed by a vote of 173 to 72.

Proposition No. 2, to issue general obligation bonds in the amount of $250,000 for extending and improving the combined waterworks and sewage system was approved by a vote of 170 to 73.

Voters failed to approve Proposition No. 3, to issue general obligation bonds to the amount of $300,000 to establish a revolving improvement fund. The funds would have been used for the purchase of tax bills issued by the city for the payment of improvements to the sewage system.

The measure required two-thirds majority and a vote 161 to 82 was three votes short.

Hearnes' brother happy to testify

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' brother and sister-in-law and a one-time Democratic Party fund-raiser testified Tuesday before a federal grand jury here which is looking into Hearnes' personal finances.

Robert E. Hearnes, a Charleston, Mo., certified public accountant who handled his brother's tax returns, spent nearly four hours before the grand jury. He brought four briefcases, a large suitcase and a box containing the working papers and income tax returns for 1968 through 1973 of the former governor.

He told newsmen he was "happy for the opportunity to tell the grand jury anything I know."

An assistant U. S. attorney here said on Jan. 10 the grand jury was investigating possible tax-evasion violations by the former governor.

During Robert Hearnes' lengthy appearance, his wife, Jean, sat outside the grand jury room with Mrs. Betty Hearnes, the former governor's wife. Betty Hearnes said she was available to testify. However, Bert Hurn, U.S. attorney for the western district ofMissouri, said he did not intend to call her as a witness Tuesday.

New twist to an old sport

Winter sports include indoor archery for several Bootheel area hunters. One group meets on Tuesday nights at an indoor range in Sikeston where, as a hunters league, they shoot at animal targets from the different positions and distances they would be likely to use in an actual hunt. After each round of shooting, the hunters walk to the targets (top photo) to check their scores and retrieve their arrows. Sikestonian Ken Hartlein (bottom photo) takes aim from a sitting position as Ken Marlin of Miner, background, prepares for a shot and other archers watch the action. The archers use the hunting techniques to sharpen their outdoor skills for the real hunting seasons. (Daily Standard photo)

Rail agreement near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's railroads have reached tentative agreements on new contracts with three unions, paving the way for a possible breakthrough on an industrywide settlement, sources said today.

Negotiations are continuing with the sheet metal workers union in an effort to avert a strike scheduled to begin Friday against the Union Pacific railroad and four other major carriers.

Union sources said the initial contract settlement with the three unions, among them the largest of 17 unions involved in the bargaining, could set the pattern for other settlements and exert pressure on the sheet metal workers to come to terms.

The tentative agreements were signed Tuesday night between representatives of the National Railway Labor Conference, the industry's bargaining arm, and the United Transportation Union, with 200,000 members; the 40,000-member Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, and the 20,000-member Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen.

Murder suspects are bound over

Two men were bound over to appear in Circuit Court on first degree murder charges following preliminary hearings Tuesday in Scott County Magistrate Court.

Dwain Boley, 47, of Morley, was ordered to appear Jan. 27 in connection with the Nov. 18 shooting death of his son, Danny, 20, at the family home.

Young Boley was allegedly shot by his father when he tried to intervene in a quarrel between his parents. He was hit once in the chest with a .22-caliber bullet.

Willie James Wilson, Jr., 26, of 203 Felker St., was ordered to appear Feb. 13 for the shooting of Clarence Love, 58, of Charleston in the Little Goodie Cafe, 1502 Osage St.

Love was shot at least twice with a .38-caliber pistol while sitting at a table in the cafe.

Man shot and robbed

CHARLESTON — Robbery is the apparent motive in the shooting of an elderly man, found about 2 p.m. Tuesday in his home at 715 Swank St., according to police Chief Bob Ritchey.

Edward Moss, believed to be about 83, had been shot once in the left side of his neck and once in the left shoulder when he was found lying on his kitchen floor. He remained in critical condition this morning in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Ritchey said Moss told him he had been shot about 9 p.m. Monday but was unable to name his assailant. A cigar box where Moss reportedly kept money was found empty on a kitchen table.

Moss, who lived alone, was discovered by neighbors who became suspicious after noticing his shades remained drawn and a front porch light still burning.

The type and caliber of weapon used in the shooting cannot be determined until Moss undergoes surgery for the removal of the bullets.

Rezoning request refused

The Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday refused to recommend a request for the rezoning of several lots along Norval Street from single family to two family.

The commission had been asked to recommend rezoning 10 lots on the east side of Norval Street from two lots north of Betty Street South to Indiana Street.

The change was requested so a small nursing home could be opened in one of the houses on the street.

But the commission said the area being rezoned was too large and opened the possibility that mobile homes might be put in the area in the future. Mobile homes are allowed in two-family zoning.

BIDC endorses foreign office idea

The key change in the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development since reorganization of state government during the summer has been that the division has become more aggressive, according to Scott Allen of Jefferson City, deputy director of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development.

Allen told members of the Bootheel Industrial Development Council Tuesday night at the Ramada Inn that when reorganization of state government went into effect July 1, the old Division of Commerce was placed under the Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing, which handles 37 different agencies.

The division is primarily the same as in the past, although there has been a large turnover of personnel and an increase in aggressiveness, according to Allen.

The industrial staff has been increased by two persons since last year, Allen reported.

Three new programs have been undertaken by the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development since reorganization, Allen said.

One project is the development of port districts. "The state of Missouri has been behind in developing their waterways," Allen said. The state now has the authority to grant licenses, although because of the activity by the Corps of Engineers, "it may be premature to say we will have ports in a year."

Another project that has been undertaken is an effort to develop an international business by establishing an office overseas. Legislation to create such an office has gone into effect, but the problem now is funding for such an office.

The Division of Commerce requested $180,000 to fund the project, but this was cut to $80,000 by the governor. Allen said that the division believes that an office could be started with that amount though.

Results of other states which have such an office have been overwhelming, Allen reported. The foreign office would benefit all segments of the state's economy and help businessmen tap the resources of an entirely new market.

Missouri has a central location and the ability for future ports which would interest foreign businessmen.

The division is now seeking support for this project from groups around the state.

The third undertaking, which has not yet even become a bill, is an effort to establish an Industrial Development Authority, which would have the power to loan or guarantee loans to industries.

Another change in reorganization was the establishment of the Division of Community Development. Several separate established programs were combined under this division, including the Ozark regional community planning, Title I, intergovernmental personnel, local and regional planning and community betterment programs.

Drug abuse knows no age barrier in area

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles on drugs and their abuse. Daily Standard reporter Ron Jaynes has spent nine months researching the problem in Southeast Missouri.)

By RON JAYNES

What is a drug? A drug is a chemical substance that has an effect upon the body or mind. This series of articles will deal primarily with drugs that have a potential for abuse because of their psychoactive, mind-altering capability. These drugs differ in their potential for physical harm.

Former President Richard Nixon once described drug abuse as America's "Public Enemy No. 1," and that description is becoming more vivid every day.

The Daily Standard's investigation of the ballooning problem has uncovered some startling information and has cooperated with the Missouri State Highway Patrol intelligence division by making this and other information gathered during tne study available for further investigation and possible prosecution.

In order to fully understand the situation and to satisfy a curiosity, this writer has experienced the smoking of marijuana and taking of amphetamines, but didn't get involved enough to get "hooked."

Marijuana smoking seems to be the younger set's big thrill. Hard drugs are used by some teenagers, but the majority is consumed by persons 20 years old and above, the investigation has revealed.

Use of drugs by older persons has apparently been stimulated in the majority of cases by frequent use of it to assist in solving nerve problems, ailments and other conditions for which doctors have prescribed the drug. In such cases the users apparently enjoy the effects so much that they continually complain about the ailment in order to obtain the drug and continue its use.

Many doctors, however, change prescriptions when addiction is suspected, but users frequently have little trouble finding access to the drug desired.

The use of all forms of drugs seems to be rapidly increasing throughout the Bootheel, and drugs are readily available-to anyone--for the right price!

One federal publication states, "Drug abuse attacks our nation's most precious resource, our youth; it creeps quietly into homes and destroys the bonds of family; it moves silently into neighborhoods and erodes those ties that make for strong communities. The defeat of this menace should be a matter of highest national priority, not only for government officials but for every American."

Any drug may be harmful when taken in excess. Some drugs can also be harmful if taken in dangerous combinations or by people with allergies, even in ordinary or small amounts.

The fact that many drugs produce beneficial results apparently leads some people to believe pills will solve all problems. Drugs that affect the mind can have subtle or obvious side effects, which can be immediate or may become evident only after long, continuouus. use.

Through association with known users, Daily Standard investigators have linked marijuana traffic to crops apparently grown locally and to transportation into the lower Bootheel from Memphis, Tenn., and into the northern part of the district (from Sikeston north) by air shipments into Cape Girardeau.

Hard drugs are also brought into the area through these same lines, but a majority of the barbiturates, amphetamines, LSD and other strong drugs are made available through local distribution channels and persons with a supply at their disposal.

There are big profits for the seller, but the reward for the user is normally a flattened pocketbook and a big problem of when and how he'll get his next "fix".

Drug abuse is not a new phenomenon. Varying forms of drug abuse have been present for years in the United States and even longer in other countries.

Many drugs temporarily allow their users to evade frustrations by lessening depression and feelings of alienation, allowing them to escape from themselves and often experience a sense of elation. Such use of drugs, of course, does not produce any significant improvement in the problems of the individual or society.

Many reasons are put forth to account for the current epidemic of drug misuse.

Some of the reasons frequently offered are: 1. belief that "medicines" can solve all problems; 2. widespread access to various drugs; 3. hoped-for enjoyment of drug effects; 4. "peer pressure," which leads an individual, especially a young one, to conform to current styles in behavior, entertainment -- and drugs.

5. The search for new perception and ideas which some persons believe they can obtain from mind-altering drugs; 6. use of drugs in a role similar to that of alcohol in a social context.

7. The manifestation of some young people's dissatisfaction and loss of faith in the prevailing social system, making them feel there is a lack of meaningful alternatives to drug-using behavior; and 8. statements of many users who proclaim the "goodness" of drugs.

There are no simple answers to the questions of drug abuse. It is a complex problem, with a number of probable causes and an equally large number of potential solutions.

Many of the questions of drug abuse will be covered in future articles from such sources as local law enforcement officials, school officials, state law enforcement officers, judges, prosecutors, juvenile officers, doctors and drug users.

DON'T GO BANKRUPT

One of the wonders of our society is the enormous reservoir of trust that characterizes business deals and credit transactions. Multimillion dollar agreements are consumated daily by telephone. Almost everyone has a credit card or two. Checks are routinely accepted in place of cash.

Now, however, owing in part to the Nation's gloomy economic downturn, bankruptcy at a whim threatens to spring a major leak in that resevoir of trust.

We hasten to add that, for some unfortunate individuals whose fortunes have soured through no fault of their own, bankruptcy is a necessary move and not a disgrace. However, there are disturbing indications that too many other citizens are choosing the bankruptcy route as a "cop-out" on their obligations, when more self-determination and pride are what are really needed.

The record year for bankruptcies was 1967 — a boom year, incidentally — when 208,000 Americans admitted publicly they couldn't pay their debts. Authorities now believe that record will be eclipsed by the end of the current fiscal year in June, with as many as 245,000 citizens declaring bankruptcy.

Those tempted to go the bankruptcy route should beware. Creditors are reluctant to do business with a bankrupt; creditors also may not accept the action and may continue to hound debtors; and the notation "bankrupt" along with the date and amount defaulted remain on a credit record for 14 years.

For those individuals truly forced to the wall, one alternative to declaring bankruptcy is to use Chapter XIII of the Federal Bankruptcy Act instead. Under Chapter XIII, a court gets most of a person's creditors to agree to partial or full payment over an extended period. And the "bankrupt" notation remains on the individual's credit record only seven years.

The best alternative, of course, remains that of watching one's debts extremely carefully, especially in these tough times; and not getting into the position of even having to contemplate bankruptcy.

Deaths from overdoses of methadone, the man-made narcotic introduced to wean addicts from heroin, for the first time have exceeded deaths from heroin, reports Security World magazine.

According to Dr. Dominick DiMaio, acting chief medical examiner in New York City, while the total number of drug-related deaths there dropped for the first time in a decade, there were 181 deaths directly attributable to methadone last year and 98 deaths due directly to heroin.

Only 10 of those who died of methadone poisoning, however, were enrolled in methadone clinics. According to Dr. Robert Newman, head of New York City's methadone program, stringent new federal regulations limiting the length of time an addict can be given methadone in a clinic have driven many of them back into the streets for their methadone, increasing the likelihood of overdose.

ORIGIN OF YOUR NAME

In early times most people bore only a first name. Along about the time of the Norman conquest of England, however, the nobility began to use the titles of their ancestral estates as surnames. The rest of the people followed the example, and proudly assumed the names of their trades, such as Smith, Baker, Miller, Clark (Clerk), and many more that you will recognize among the names of your friends today.

Other names show simple relationship of father and son. For instance, Wilson was originally William-his-son. Thompson and Johnson and many more were formed in the same way. Indeed, in almost every country you find names indicating this relationship.

The prefix O' in Ireland and Mac or Mc in Scotland has this meaning. That is, O'Hara means the son of Hara, and MacCarthy means the son of Arthur. The French word for son, "fils," was corrupted into Fitz. Thus, Fitzpatrick means the son of Patrick and Fitzgerald means the son of Gerald. The Welsh indicated this same thing by the word 'ap.'' In this way David the son of Howell was called David ap Howell, which gradually became Powell. Ap Richard became Pritchard.

As people moved from one country to another they often became known by place names. A man from Scotland would be called "the Scot," and the surname Scott would be applied to his whole family. Wallace originally indicated a person who came from Wales.

XXX

BUSINESS SEEKS ITS OWN ACTIVISTS

Some two decades ago, Charles E. Wilson told a congressional committee that "What's good for the country is good for General Motors and vice versa."

At the time Wilson uttered his famous quote-of which most Americans heard only the "vice versa" part-the responsibilities of business to the consumer were relatively simple: to manufacture products at prices people were selling and able to pay.

Since then, the corporate philosophy attributed to the former GM head has been drastically altered by such factors as inflation coupled with a depressed economy and sagging stock market, food and commodity shortages, the energy crisis and environmental legislation, as well as by consumer activists.

It has also been discredited by that aspect of Watergate in which many corporations made illegal contributions to the 1972 Nixon re-election campaign.

Out of it seems to be emerging a new breed of corporation leader, one who believes that business must adjust to the new realities if it is to help preserve the balance of institutional power that is so critically needed in a democratic society. Representative of this new type of businessman is C. Pendelton Thomas, chairman of B.F. Goodrich, who said in a recent speech:

"It's time for more business people, working through their organizations and acting independently as private citizens, to take a more energetic, active part in political and social causes to preserve and perfect our economic and political systems for the good of all the people."

In America and other democracies, Thomas pointed out, the public has always sought to ensure a balance of power among its major institutions. This is especially true as it applies to business, government and labor.

When power appears to be evenly distributed, there seems to be a sense of public confidence that these institutions will operate in the public interest by maintaining checks and balances on each other.

But business people, Thomas charged, have not participated to the extent they should in governmental affairs-the right kind of participating. This is reflected in the current balance of power among government, labor and business. The latter's influence on public policy has seriously eroded in recent years.

On the other hand, organized labor, despite its declining membership as a percentage of the total work force, has maintained a strong influence on governmental affairs and political activity. The balance of institutional power has also been affected by the tremendous growth and proliferation of government agencies.

Increasingly, said Thomas, many important business decisions are not being made in corporate headquarters or in boardrooms. Rather, they are being made in Washington, in state capitals, in city halls and in township halls.

The system will operate without the business community's input. But if it produces restrictive measures that, in the judgment of business leaders, unfairly impede operations and do not serve the public interests, then these leaders have only themselves to blame for their silence, inaction or ineffectiveness.

Business people, said Thomas, "should work toward the day when they call each other activists and like it."

130 MILLION MAN HOURS TO FILL OUT U.S. FORMS

Americans are filling out more forms for Uncle Sam than ever despite a 1942 law aimed at minimizing the paperwork burden, says Tax Foundation, Inc.

Office of Management and Budget figures show a year's crop of Federal forms now requires 130 million man-hours of the time of individuals and organizations.

Since the end of 1967, the number of different reports has increased by 475 to a total of 5,146 Federal forms. Individuals now need 63.8 million manhours to complete them and businesses use up 35.6 million man-hours. Farmers need 4.1 million hours, as do non-profit and other organizations, with state and local governments requiring 22.4 million.

There has been a 50 percent increase in the reporting burden on American business since 1967. OMB says new or enlarged Federal programs were the principal source of this increase, including occupational safety and health activities, expanded Social Security programs, environmental protection regulations, and equal employment opportunity compliance.

Since the Federal Reports Act of 1942, it has been the declared policy of Congress that the reporting burden placed on the public be minimized, Tax Foundation notes.

AGGRAVATING THE SITUATION

Consumer boycotts and meat price ceilings at the retail level, if continued, will lead to shortages that will make the question of price academic. Instead of worrying about price, consumers will be worrying about how to find meat any price. Perhaps consumer boycotts and price controls can hold prices down, but no one can force a farmer to produce a beef animal or a hog when he can no longer do so in expectation of a reasonable profit.

For 20 years, the cattle business has been, at best, a marginal proposition. This is a fact that few Americans have understood because most of us have little knowledge of what it takes to produce food from the land--land on which taxes have steadily risen. Very few people have any conception of the investment required to maintain a cattle operation. Fencing alone, in many cases, costs as much as a whole farm once cost.

In warning against boycotts and controls, the president of the National Life Stock and Meat Board, Mr. David H. Stroud, pointed out that more beef and pork is on the way to market as farmers and ranchers have been building their breeding herds in order to increase supplies in response to demand. The disruptive effect of controls and boycotts could change the trend from abundance to scarcity. Mr. Stroud declares that the ultimate consequences of boycott action on a massive scale would be to raise prices to an even higher level. He stated it would be "an economic signal to the nation's livestock producers that consumer demand was diminishing and have a negative effect on their individual decisions regarding the production of more meat animals."

There is only one way to bring prices into line--across the board--and that is to demand an end to huge, dollar depreciating government deficit spending.

KEEP IT QUIET

Early one morning a salesman was awakened by trashmen rattling garbage cans underneath his motel window. Instead of running to the manager and complaining about the racket, he went down the street to a hardware wholesaler. He borrowed a 40-gallon trash can made from polyvinyl.

He took it to the motel manager and demonstrated how a plastic can does not make any noise when handled.

"I 'm sure I was not the only one who was ready to move out this morning," he pointed out. "This trash can and will solve that problem forever."

The manager ordered 17 of them and the salesman's commission on the sale paid his 5-day motel bill.

USED TO THE BEST

One of the miracles of America is its telephone service. Voice communication to virtually any point in the nation is literally at your fingertips and only a few seconds away. As a matter of fact, phone service has been so good in most communities across the nation that people largely take it for granted and expect the next thing to perfection as a matter of course. When we lift the receiver, most of us are instantly irritated if it takes more than a split second to get a dial tone or a few moments to reach an operator.

Since we're all used to using the world's best telephone system, it is now imperative that we understand what it takes to keep it that way. There is a lot more to getting that instant voice on the line than meets the eye in the attractive instrument on our desk or wall. For example, the U.S. telephone industry is one of the largest industries in the nation. It is spending around $1 billion a month on construction and improvement of plant and equipment to meet increasing demand for service. The head of the nation's largest telephone system has pointed out that his company has ". . . to go to the investment markets every year to raise upwards of $4 billion of new capital to meet public demand for telephone service. You can raise that kind of money only if the public is willing to invest in your business -- to buy your bonds. . . or . . . stock. People aren't going to be willing to do that unless you can offer them a return that is comparable to what they can get from alternative investment opportunities."

Good telephone service, like everything else, costs more to produce; and, ultimately, those costs have to be met in the rates charged for service. But as the industry spokesman points out, if all his company's requests were granted rates would still ". . . not be up as much as nearly everything else in the clost of living." A few cents extra is probably not too much to pay for the privilege of continuing to use the best telephone system in the world. After all, we would get pretty irritated without it.

The Yukon Again: Alaskan Oil to flow sooner because Labor-Management signed Unique Peace Pact

WASHINGTON — The call of the wild is with us again. From the golden oil rush in the Yukon reports pour in of $1,000- to $1,400-a-week jobs for construction workers and $200 a week for dishwashers. But that's not the story.

The big news, the big story, is in the demonstration that when American labor and management work together peacefully, strike-free, with full play of ingenuity, with no featherbedding, and shoulder-to-shoulder understanding, little if anything can stop us.

Jingoistic? No. Up there they finished a tough 400-mile brand new road from the pipeline midpoint, the Yukon River, to Alaska's north slope 30 days ahead of schedule in the rush to get oil pouring from Prudhoe Bay by late 1977 at the rate of two million barrels a day. How'd they do it?

It all started with the signing last year of the virtually unknown Trans-Alaska Pipeline Project Labor Agreement.

Never has there been such agreement between labor and management. And never has there been such a huge publicly-financed construction project. And never has this nation been in such a crunch.

This is a 14-page agreement with highlights such as the blunt statement that "Failure of any union or employee to cross any picket line established at the Project site is a violation of this Article."

This "Article" is a no-strike, no-lockout binding agreement. The phrase above says that anyone who respects a picket line and doesn't go in to work is acting illegally.

Furthermore, there is agreement that the management can use "new technology, equipment, machinery, tools, energy and-or labor-saving devices and methods of performing work" as it sees fit. Any of these labor-saving innovations can be "initiated by the Contractor from time to time during the Project. The union agrees that it will not in any way restrict the implementation of such new devices or work methods."

Thus the union yields on what further south, on the mainland, we call automation.

There is much more, indeed. It was all worked out by a labor committee representing building and construction trades unions, the Teamsters, and even the culinary workers. Their spokesman was Building and Construction Trades Dept. (AFL-CIO) president Bob Georgine. And on the other side tough-bargaining Washington lawyer William J. Curtin, acting for a huge consortium of oil and construction companies, the Alyeska Pipeline Service Company.

On the labor side were leaders of unions whose hiring halls now have put some 5,000 in the frozen fields and by 1976 will have recruited some 14,000 workers. This will be trimmed down to 10,000. In all some $6 billion will be spent.

It took five months of hard bargaining management. But it's all there now -- including the agreement that no race or creed will be discriminated against, be the worker an Eskimo, an Aleut, a white or a black. And I presume, if the ladies can stand the cold, they can hire on, too.

There's a unique agreement. The first of its kind, for impartial arbitration of jurisdictional disputes.

In the construction field, where competitive unions have shut down projects costing hundreds of thousands of dollars over an issue like who tightens a screw, arbitration of jurisdiction is about as startling as would be the selection of Golda Meir by the Arabs as Middle East umpire.

And of course, John Dunlop is impartial arbitrator.

The Project Labor Agreement (andtwo similar ones for Prudhoe Bay East and West now covers all local Alaskan unions as well as the internationals. The last to sign was the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) which approved the pact on Jan. 9, 1975.

There is, therefore, a no-strike, no interunioin warfare, no-stoppage, no ban on speed-the-work equipment agreement covering construction of the 748-mile long 48-inch pipeline -- and the installations at the Arctic oil fields as well as at the marine and waterfront areas at the pouring end, the city of Valdez, the ice-free port in south-central Alaska.

There is a series of procedures to resolve any conceivable kind of dispute. The only thing somewhat like this sudden blitz of heaven to the construction field was in the building of Disneyworld near Orlando, Fla.

All this is evidence the oil could have been flowing by this time if the environmentalists had not stalled the project for years. True, Alaska will not be the same again. There will be surface pipeline. Some of it will be buried. There will be pumping stations. But the oil rush crowd will leave Alaska -- except for the few who will build homes and invest their lives in the distant state. When the oil is flowing to Valdez, and 21 tankers a day carry the golden fuel to West Coast ports, only some 450 workers will be needed to operate the line. There will be ample room, tundra and ice for all who want it by the tens of thousands of square miles -- for man and beast, for Aleuts, Eskimos and mainland blacks and whites. And for polar bears and seals. The nation will have more oil. The work force will have jobs, building tankers, manning them, loading them.

Perhaps the spirit of Alaska will be catching -- even when the nation's existence is not involved.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Unsung Heroes and a Whitewash

By JACK ANDERSON
With
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Locked in the Central Intelligence Agency's vaults is another side to the CIA story, which probably will never be told.

The story can be found in the thick, top-secret transcripts of the civilian advisory board, which watches over the CIA.

CIA officials were subjected to intensive questioning, which sometimes lasted a full day. This brought a great many reforms, which the board pressed upon the CIA.

A former chairman, Clark Clifford, told us he was convinced from the sessions that the CIA not only is an effective but an essential organization.

In the nuclear age, he said, the CIA has become our first line of defense. If some agents have been fools, he said, others have been unsung heroes whose deeds surpass the most valorous in our history yet must remain unrecorded.

"The CIA had some dramatic successes," he said. "But the successes must remain concealed or they no longer will be successes."

He singled out for praise undercover men who have been caught and have been subjected to skillfully cruel torture, yet have resisted with uncommon bravery the effort to extort information from them.

Of course, the CIA has also had its blunders. The blunder of all blunders was the Bay of Pigs invasion. The late President Kennedy declared afterwards that he "wanted to splinter the CIA in a thousand pieces and scatter it to the winds."

When he cooled down, Kennedy called in Clark Clifford, who had helped to draft the legislation establishing the CIA. Clifford told us he remembers the late President's words vividly.

"I made some bad decisions on the Bay of Pigs," said Kennedy. "I made these bad decisions because I had bad information. My information was bad, because our intelligence was poor. Something is gravely wrong inside the CIA, and I intend to find out what it is. I cannot afford another "Bay of Pigs."

The late President often attended the civilian advisory board's secret sessions and helped to fashion the reforms that were imposed upon the CIA.

Footnote: Our CIA sources say the advisory board lost some of its clout after Kennedy's assassination.

STRANGE MODESTY: The Interior Department may be the only agency in Washington which doesn't like to crow about its successes.

For well over a year, the department's Fish and Wildlife Service has been cracking down on the miscreants who seek pleasure of profit from killing, selling and trading endangered animals.

Teams of special agents, lawyers and intelligence experts, some of them working undercover, have zeroed in on the traffickers in animals. Scores of hunters, guides and dealers have been arrested, and millions of dollars' worth of illegal animal products have been seized.

Some cases have been publicized. Interior, for example, has not hesitated to issue press releases about alligator poachers, Indians caught selling eagle feathers, or sheep ranchers convicted for shooting golden eagles from airplanes.

When the guilty party turns out to be a "Mr. Big," however, Interior remains mysteriously mute.

Last September, for example, the Justice Department successfully prosecuted George F. Gamble, the 36-year-old heir to the Procter and Gamble soap fortune.

He had been arrested by Fish and Wildlife agents for transporting across state lines the head of a Rocky Mountain Bighorn Sheep, which was killed in Yellowstone National Park.

The soap tycoon, who is also a California rancher with a degree in animal husbandry, was convicted, too, of illegally transporting parts of a trophy elk, which was shot on the Crow Indian Reservation in Montana.

District Judge Robert Peckham threw the book at Gamble. He was fined $10,500, was instructed not to hunt big game anywhere in the world for the next three years, and was ordered to volunteer one day a week to aconservation cause. The case is now under appeal.

The Gamble affair, in others words, was perhaps the Fish and Wildlife Service's most spectacular success. Yet despite the endless flow of press trivia from the Interior Department's public information office, not a single word was put out about the Gamble conviction.

In a similar case last year, the world-famous ornithologist and director of the Yale University Pabody Museum, Dr. Charles G. Sibley, paid a fine of $3,000 for importing rare bird eggs in violation of the wildlife laws.

Again, the Interior Department maintained a curious silence. The public found out about it only after Sports Illustrated magazine dug out the facts.

Spokesmen for the Interior Department say they don't issue press releases on criminal convictions, because the cases are frequently appealed. Yet announcements have been made of the arrests and convictions in other cases involving people of little renown. The Sibley fine, for that matter, came in a civil case.

Footnote: We were unable to reach George Gamble for comment. His attorney, James Martin MacInnis, did not return our calls.

The candidate for the office of sheriff was defeated ignominiously. He got fifty-five votes out of a total of thirty-five hundred, and the next day walked down Main street with two guns hanging from his belt.

"See here," some fellow citizens told him, "you were not elected sheriff, and you have no right to carry guns."

"Listen," he replied, "a man with no more friends than I've got needs to carry guns."

ORIGIN OF YOUR NAME

In early times most people bore only a first name. Along about the time of the Norman conquest of England, however, the nobility began to use the titles of their ancestral estates as surnames. The rest of the people followed the example, and proudly assumed the names of their trades, such as Smith, Baker, Miller, Clark (Clerk), and many more that you will recognize among the names of your friends today.

Other names show simple relationship of father and son. For instance, Wilson was originally William-his-son. Thompson and Johnson and many more were formed in the same way. Indeed, in almost every country you find names indicating this relationship.

The prefix O' in Ireland and Mac or Mc in Scotland has this meaning. That is, O'Hara means the son of Hara, and MacCarthy means the son of Arthur. The French word for son, "fils," was corrupted into Fitz. Thus, Fitzpatrick means the son of Patrick and Fitzgerald means the son of Gerald. The Welsh indicated this same thing by the word 'ap.'' In this way David the son of Howell was called David ap Howell, which gradually became Powell. Ap Richard became Pritchard.

As people moved from one country to another they often became known by place names. A man from Scotland would be called "the Scot," and the surname Scott would be applied to his whole family. Wallace originally indicated a person who came from Wales.

BUSINESS SEEKS ITS OWN ACTIVISTS

Some two decades ago, Charles E. Wilson told a congressional committee that "What's good for the country is good for General Motors and vice versa."

At the time Wilson uttered his famous quote-of which most Americans heard only the "vice versa" part-the responsibilities of business to the consumer were relatively simple: to manufacture products at prices people were selling and able to pay.

Since then, the corporate philosophy attributed to the former GM head has been drastically altered by such factors as inflation coupled with a depressed economy and sagging stock market, food and commodity shortages, the energy crisis and environmental legislation, as well as by consumer activists.

It has also been discredited by that aspect of Watergate in which many corporations made illegal contributions to the 1972 Nixon re-election campaign.

Out of it seems to be emerging a new breed of corporation leader, one who believes that business must adjust to the new realities if it is to help preserve the balance of institutional power that is so critically needed in a democratic society. Representative of this new type of businessman is C. Pendelton Thomas, chairman of B.F. Goodrich, who said in a recent speech:

"It's time for more business people, working through their organizations and acting independently as private citizens, to take a more energetic, active part in political and social causes to preserve and perfect our economic and political systems for the good of all the people."

In America and other democracies, Thomas pointed out, the public has always sought to ensure a balance of power among its major institutions. This is especially true as it applies to business, government and labor.

When power appears to be evenly distributed, there seems to be a sense of public confidence that these institutions will operate in the public interest by maintaining checks and balances on each other.

But business people, Thomas charged, have not participated to the extent they should in governmental affairs-the right kind of participating. This is reflected in the current balance of power among government, labor and business. The latter's influence on public policy has seriously eroded in recent years.

On the other hand, organized labor, despite its declining membership as a percentage of the total work force, has maintained a strong influence on governmental affairs and political activity. The balance of institutional power has also been affected by the tremendous growth and proliferation of government agencies.

Increasingly, said Thomas, many important business decisions are not being made in corporate headquarters or in boardrooms. Rather, they are being made in Washington, in state capitals, in city halls and in township halls.

The system will operate without the business community's input. But if it produces restrictive measures that, in the judgment of business leaders, unfairly impede operations and do not serve the public interests, then these leaders have only themselves to blame for their silence, inaction or ineffectiveness.

Business people, said Thomas, "should work toward the day when they call each other activists and like it."

130 MILLION MAN HOURS TO FILL OUT U.S. FORMS

Americans are filling out more forms for Uncle Sam than ever despite a 1942 law aimed at minimizing the paperwork burden, says Tax Foundation, Inc.

Office of Management and Budget figures show a year's crop of Federal forms now requires 130 million man-hours of the time of individuals and organizations.

Since the end of 1967, the number of different reports has increased by 475 to a total of 5,146 Federal forms. Individuals now need 63.8 million manhours to complete them and businesses use up 35.6 million man-hours. Farmers need 4.1 million hours, as do non-profit and other organizations, with state and local governments requiring 22.4 million.

There has been a 50 percent increase in the reporting burden on American business since 1967. OMB says new or enlarged Federal programs were the principal source of this increase, including occupational safety and health activities, expanded Social Security programs, environmental protection regulations, and equal employment opportunity compliance.

Since the Federal Reports Act of 1942, it has been the declared policy of Congress that the reporting burden placed on the public be minimized, Tax Foundation notes.

AGGRAVATING THE SITUATION

Consumer boycotts and meat price ceilings at the retail level, if continued, will lead to shortages that will make the question of price academic. Instead of worrying about price, consumers will be worrying about how to find meat any price. Perhaps consumer boycotts and price controls can hold prices down, but no one can force a farmer to produce a beef animal or a hog when he can no longer do so in expectation of a reasonable profit.

For 20 years, the cattle business has been, at best, a marginal proposition. This is a fact that few Americans have understood because most of us have little knowledge of what it takes to produce food from the land--land on which taxes have steadily risen. Very few people have any conception of the investment required to maintain a cattle operation. Fencing alone, in many cases, costs as much as a whole farm once cost.

In warning against boycotts and controls, the president of the National Life Stock and Meat Board, Mr. David H. Stroud, pointed out that more beef and pork is on the way to market as farmers and ranchers have been building their breeding herds in order to increase supplies in response to demand. The disruptive effect of controls and boycotts could change the trend from abundance to scarcity. Mr. Stroud declares that the ultimate consequences of boycott action on a massive scale would be to raise prices to an even higher level. He stated it would be "an economic signal to the nation's livestock producers that consumer demand was diminishing and have a negative effect on their individual decisions regarding the production of more meat animals."

There is only one way to bring prices into line--across the board--and that is to demand an end to huge, dollar depreciating government deficit spending.

KEEP IT QUIET

Early one morning a salesman was awakened by trashmen rattling garbage cans underneath his motel window. Instead of running to the manager and complaining about the racket, he went down the street to a hardware wholesaler. He borrowed a 40-gallon trash can made from polyvinyl.

He took it to the motel manager and demonstrated how a plastic can does not make any noise when handled.

"I 'm sure I was not the only one who was ready to move out this morning," he pointed out. "This trash can and will solve that problem forever."

The manager ordered 17 of them and the salesman's commission on the sale paid his 5-day motel bill.

USED TO THE BEST

One of the miracles of America is its telephone service. Voice communication to virtually any point in the nation is literally at your fingertips and only a few seconds away. As a matter of fact, phone service has been so good in most communities across the nation that people largely take it for granted and expect the next thing to perfection as a matter of course. When we lift the receiver, most of us are instantly irritated if it takes more than a split second to get a dial tone or a few moments to reach an operator.

Since we're all used to using the world's best telephone system, it is now imperative that we understand what it takes to keep it that way. There is a lot more to getting that instant voice on the line than meets the eye in the attractive instrument on our desk or wall. For example, the U.S. telephone industry is one of the largest industries in the nation. It is spending around $1 billion a month on construction and improvement of plant and equipment to meet increasing demand for service. The head of the nation's largest telephone system has pointed out that his company has ". . . to go to the investment markets every year to raise upwards of $4 billion of new capital to meet public demand for telephone service. You can raise that kind of money only if the public is willing to invest in your business -- to buy your bonds. . . or . . . stock. People aren't going to be willing to do that unless you can offer them a return that is comparable to what they can get from alternative investment opportunities."

Good telephone service, like everything else, costs more to produce; and, ultimately, those costs have to be met in the rates charged for service. But as the industry spokesman points out, if all his company's requests were granted rates would still ". . . not be up as much as nearly everything else in the clost of living." A few cents extra is probably not too much to pay for the privilege of continuing to use the best telephone system in the world. After all, we would get pretty irritated without it.

The Yukon Again: Alaskan Oil to flow sooner because Labor-Management signed Unique Peace Pact

WASHINGTON — The call of the wild is with us again. From the golden oil rush in the Yukon reports pour in of $1,000- to $1,400-a-week jobs for construction workers and $200 a week for dishwashers. But that's not the story.

The big news, the big story, is in the demonstration that when American labor and management work together peacefully, strike-free, with full play of ingenuity, with no featherbedding, and shoulder-to-shoulder understanding, little if anything can stop us.

Jingoistic? No. Up there they finished a tough 400-mile brand new road from the pipeline midpoint, the Yukon River, to Alaska's north slope 30 days ahead of schedule in the rush to get oil pouring from Prudhoe Bay by late 1977 at the rate of two million barrels a day. How'd they do it?

It all started with the signing last year of the virtually unknown Trans-Alaska Pipeline Project Labor Agreement.

Never has there been such agreement between labor and management. And never has there been such a huge publicly-financed construction project. And never has this nation been in such a crunch.

This is a 14-page agreement with highlights such as the blunt statement that "Failure of any union or employee to cross any picket line established at the Project site is a violation of this Article."

This "Article" is a no-strike, no-lockout binding agreement. The phrase above says that anyone who respects a picket line and doesn't go in to work is acting illegally.

Furthermore, there is agreement that the management can use "new technology, equipment, machinery, tools, energy and-or labor-saving devices and methods of performing work" as it sees fit. Any of these labor-saving innovations can be "initiated by the Contractor from time to time during the Project. The union agrees that it will not in any way restrict the implementation of such new devices or work methods."

Thus the union yields on what further south, on the mainland, we call automation.

There is much more, indeed. It was all worked out by a labor committee representing building and construction trades unions, the Teamsters, and even the culinary workers. Their spokesman was Building and Construction Trades Dept. (AFL-CIO) president Bob Georgine. And on the other side tough-bargaining Washington lawyer William J. Curtin, acting for a huge consortium of oil and construction companies, the Alyeska Pipeline Service Company.

On the labor side were leaders of unions whose hiring halls now have put some 5,000 in the frozen fields and by 1976 will have recruited some 14,000 workers. This will be trimmed down to 10,000. In all some $6 billion will be spent.

It took five months of hard bargaining management. But it's all there now -- including the agreement that no race or creed will be discriminated against, be the worker an Eskimo, an Aleut, a white or a black. And I presume, if the ladies can stand the cold, they can hire on, too.

There's a unique agreement. The first of its kind, for impartial arbitration of jurisdictional disputes.

In the construction field, where competitive unions have shut down projects costing hundreds of thousands of dollars over an issue like who tightens a screw, arbitration of jurisdiction is about as startling as would be the selection of Golda Meir by the Arabs as Middle East umpire.

And of course, John Dunlop is impartial arbitrator.

The Project Labor Agreement (andtwo similar ones for Prudhoe Bay East and West now covers all local Alaskan unions as well as the internationals. The last to sign was the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) which approved the pact on Jan. 9, 1975.

There is, therefore, a no-strike, no interunioin warfare, no-stoppage, no ban on speed-the-work equipment agreement covering construction of the 748-mile long 48-inch pipeline -- and the installations at the Arctic oil fields as well as at the marine and waterfront areas at the pouring end, the city of Valdez, the ice-free port in south-central Alaska.

There is a series of procedures to resolve any conceivable kind of dispute. The only thing somewhat like this sudden blitz of heaven to the construction field was in the building of Disneyworld near Orlando, Fla.

All this is evidence the oil could have been flowing by this time if the environmentalists had not stalled the project for years. True, Alaska will not be the same again. There will be surface pipeline. Some of it will be buried. There will be pumping stations. But the oil rush crowd will leave Alaska -- except for the few who will build homes and invest their lives in the distant state. When the oil is flowing to Valdez, and 21 tankers a day carry the golden fuel to West Coast ports, only some 450 workers will be needed to operate the line. There will be ample room, tundra and ice for all who want it by the tens of thousands of square miles -- for man and beast, for Aleuts, Eskimos and mainland blacks and whites. And for polar bears and seals. The nation will have more oil. The work force will have jobs, building tankers, manning them, loading them.

Perhaps the spirit of Alaska will be catching -- even when the nation's existence is not involved.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Unsung Heroes and a Whitewash

By JACK ANDERSON
With
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Locked in the Central Intelligence Agency's vaults is another side to the CIA story, which probably will never be told.

The story can be found in the thick, top-secret transcripts of the civilian advisory board, which watches over the CIA.

CIA officials were subjected to intensive questioning, which sometimes lasted a full day. This brought a great many reforms, which the board pressed upon the CIA.

A former chairman, Clark Clifford, told us he was convinced from the sessions that the CIA not only is an effective but an essential organization.

In the nuclear age, he said, the CIA has become our first line of defense. If some agents have been fools, he said, others have been unsung heroes whose deeds surpass the most valorous in our history yet must remain unrecorded.

"The CIA had some dramatic successes," he said. "But the successes must remain concealed or they no longer will be successes."

He singled out for praise undercover men who have been caught and have been subjected to skillfully cruel torture, yet have resisted with uncommon bravery the effort to extort information from them.

Of course, the CIA has also had its blunders. The blunder of all blunders was the Bay of Pigs invasion. The late President Kennedy declared afterwards that he "wanted to splinter the CIA in a thousand pieces and scatter it to the winds."

When he cooled down, Kennedy called in Clark Clifford, who had helped to draft the legislation establishing the CIA. Clifford told us he remembers the late President's words vividly.

"I made some bad decisions on the Bay of Pigs," said Kennedy. "I made these bad decisions because I had bad information. My information was bad, because our intelligence was poor. Something is gravely wrong inside the CIA, and I intend to find out what it is. I cannot afford another "Bay of Pigs."

The late President often attended the civilian advisory board's secret sessions and helped to fashion the reforms that were imposed upon the CIA.

Footnote: Our CIA sources say the advisory board lost some of its clout after Kennedy's assassination.

STRANGE MODESTY: The Interior Department may be the only agency in Washington which doesn't like to crow about its successes.

For well over a year, the department's Fish and Wildlife Service has been cracking down on the miscreants who seek pleasure of profit from killing, selling and trading endangered animals.

Teams of special agents, lawyers and intelligence experts, some of them working undercover, have zeroed in on the traffickers in animals. Scores of hunters, guides and dealers have been arrested, and millions of dollars' worth of illegal animal products have been seized.

Some cases have been publicized. Interior, for example, has not hesitated to issue press releases about alligator poachers, Indians caught selling eagle feathers, or sheep ranchers convicted for shooting golden eagles from airplanes.

When the guilty party turns out to be a "Mr. Big," however, Interior remains mysteriously mute.

Last September, for example, the Justice Department successfully prosecuted George F. Gamble, the 36-year-old heir to the Procter and Gamble soap fortune.

He had been arrested by Fish and Wildlife agents for transporting across state lines the head of a Rocky Mountain Bighorn Sheep, which was killed in Yellowstone National Park.

The soap tycoon, who is also a California rancher with a degree in animal husbandry, was convicted, too, of illegally transporting parts of a trophy elk, which was shot on the Crow Indian Reservation in Montana.

District Judge Robert Peckham threw the book at Gamble. He was fined $10,500, was instructed not to hunt big game anywhere in the world for the next three years, and was ordered to volunteer one day a week to aconservation cause. The case is now under appeal.

The Gamble affair, in others words, was perhaps the Fish and Wildlife Service's most spectacular success. Yet despite the endless flow of press trivia from the Interior Department's public information office, not a single word was put out about the Gamble conviction.

In a similar case last year, the world-famous ornithologist and director of the Yale University Pabody Museum, Dr. Charles G. Sibley, paid a fine of $3,000 for importing rare bird eggs in violation of the wildlife laws.

Again, the Interior Department maintained a curious silence. The public found out about it only after Sports Illustrated magazine dug out the facts.

Spokesmen for the Interior Department say they don't issue press releases on criminal convictions, because the cases are frequently appealed. Yet announcements have been made of the arrests and convictions in other cases involving people of little renown. The Sibley fine, for that matter, came in a civil case.

Footnote: We were unable to reach George Gamble for comment. His attorney, James Martin MacInnis, did not return our calls.

Tax relief gets quick action; energy program entangled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is responding to President Ford's renewed drive for his economic program with quick action on tax relief while entangling his energy program in dispute.

In a no-retreat statement opening his news conference Tuesday, Ford said he will put into effect without congressional help his tariff on imported oil and would veto any mandatory gasoline rationing legislation.

House leaders went ahead with plans to open hearings today on tax abatement — both Ford's version and Democratic counterproposals.

But they moved to block the imposition of the $3-a-barrel tax on imported crude oil long enough for other options to be brought up.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said hearings will begin Monday or Tuesday on his resolution to hold up the tariff at least 90 days.

Ford said he would put it in effect by proclamation this week, clearing the way for the tax beginning at $1 on Feb. 1 and reaching $3 April 1.

In the nationally broadcast news conference, Ford also said "the United States does feel that the danger of war in the Middle East is very serious" and that diplomatic efforts to avoid an outbreak are being intensified with both Israel and the Arab states.

"We are supplying some arms to various states in that region," he said, adding it is important to maintain "a certain degree of military capability on all sides" while negotiations go on.

Ford again backed Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in refusing to rule out military takeover of oil fields in the hypothetical situation that the West might be strangled by a petroleum cutoff. But he said this would be an extreme situation, not something like last year's short-lived embargo.

On other matters, Ford:

—Said he cannot foresee any circumstances in which the United States might re-enter the Vietnam war, but said he will ask for another $300 million in military aid for South Vietnam.

—Said that "unfortunately" he must refrain from recommending a national health program because of his decision to start no new costly programs. Democrats have promised to press ahead on health insurance.

Much of the questioning centered on Ford's disputes with congressional Democrats on energy measures.

Club to recommend park

The Kiwanis Club voted Tuesday night to recommend to its board of directors that the club sponsor formationn of a new park as a memorial to the late George Kirk.

Bob Meyers and Earl Hutchison, who presented the idea to the club, explained that the park could be located on five or six acres of the new recreation park being developed by the city.

They proposed that facilities for the park include a 20 by 24-foot shelter house, heavy duty picnic table for use inside the shelter and outside, concrete rest rooms, a wave slide and tower climber and an extra heavy duty swing and saddle mate swing set.

Meyers and Hutchison estimated that the project would cost the club about $8,000.

They reminded the club members that eight or 10 years ago Kirk had proposed that the club sponsor a park west of the golf course, but nothing was ever done.

The date for the annual Kiwanis Pancake Day was set for March 25.

Ray White announced that his committee is planning a farmers appreciation meeting in February.

Mishap injures Dexter man

AID — A Dexter man suffered minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident here Monday afternoon on Route F, according to the highway patrol.

The accident occurred at 2:10 p.m. when Floyd Deardorff, 79, of Dexter attempted a left turn from the northbound lane and his pickup truck collided with a truck being driven south by Jimmy Edwards, 32, of Dexter.

Deardorff was taken to Dexter Memorial Hospital.

$4,349 judgement awarded

BENTON — In a recent civil case before the Scott County Circuit Court, Judge Marshall Craig awarded judgment of $4,349.23 to Christel H. Perry of St. Louis, the plaintiff in a suit against Doyce Perry of Oran. The total judgment consisted of $3,475 principal, $306.95 interest and $567.28 attorney fees.

In the suit, Christel Perry claimed that Doyce Perry executed his promissory note on Oct. 2, 1973 in face vvalue of $3,500, payable to him in 59 monthly installments of $25 each,with entire balance due on the 60th month.

The plantiff said one payment of $25 had been made, but no other payment had been received, and asked judgment for the remaining principal plus interest and attorney fees, which the court granted.

The Kiwanis Club voted Tuesday night to recommend to its board of directors that the club sponsor formationn of a new park as a memorial to the late George Kirk.

Bob Meyers and Earl Hutchison, who presented the idea to the club, explained that the park could be located on five or six acres of the new recreation park being developed by the city.

They proposed that facilities for the park include a 20 by 24-foot shelter house, heavy duty picnic table for use inside the shelter and outside, concrete rest rooms, a wave slide and tower climber and an extra heavy duty swing and saddle mate swing set.

Meyers and Hutchison estimated that the project would cost the club about $8,000.

They reminded the club members that eight or 10 years ago Kirk had proposed that the club sponsor a park west of the golf course, but nothing was ever done.

The date for the annual Kiwanis Pancake Day was set for March 25.

Ray White announced that his committee is planning a farmers appreciation meeting in February.

$4,349 judgement awarded

BENTON — In a recent civil case before the Scott County Circuit Court, Judge Marshall Craig awarded judgment of $4,349.23 to Christel H. Perry of St. Louis, the plaintiff in a suit against Doyce Perry of Oran. The total judgment consisted of $3,475 principal, $306.95 interest and $567.28 attorney fees.

In the suit, Christel Perry claimed that Doyce Perry executed his promissory note on Oct. 2, 1973 in face vvalue of $3,500, payable to him in 59 monthly installments of $25 each,with entire balance due on the 60th month.

The plantiff said one payment of $25 had been made, but no other payment had been received, and asked judgment for the remaining principal plus interest and attorney fees, which the court granted.

Mishap injures Dexter man

AID — A Dexter man suffered minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident here Monday afternoon on Route F, according to the highway patrol.

The accident occurred at 2:10 p.m. when Floyd Deardorff, 79, of Dexter attempted a left turn from the northbound lane and his pickup truck collided with a truck being driven south by Jimmy Edwards, 32, of Dexter.

Deardorff was taken to Dexter Memorial Hospital.

Films viewed by 13,454

PORTAGEVILLE — A package of seven Christmas films were viewed by 13,454 New Madrid Countians during the holidays. The films were shown 91 times throughout the county.

The New Madrid County Library plans to purchase enough additional films before next Christmas to offer two packages, thereby making Christmas films available to more people.

Doctor reports
Small dosage Vitamin C combats cold symptoms

TORONTO, Canada — Vitamin C -- heralded in the last few years as effective in combating the symptoms of colds when consumed in large doses -- may be effective in much smaller amounts than previously believed.

Dr. Terence W. Anderson, an epidemiologist at University of Toronto, reported on the therapeutic value of reduced dosages of Vitamin C at a conference in October in New York.

A 30 per cent reduction in the severity of cold symptoms was reported among persons who took only a small amount of Vitamin C -- less than 250 milligrams a day regularly and one gram a day when cold symptoms occurred, he reported. The results were based on a controlled study of more than 600 volunteers in Toronto.

For further relief of cold symptoms, other doctors continue to recommend aspirin, liquids and rest. Nasal stuffiness can be relieved with a decongestant spray or drops.

The amounts of Vitamin C recommended by the Canadian researcher represent only a fraction of those advocated by Dr. Linus Pauling three years ago in his book, "Vitamin C and the Common Cold." The subject remains a matter of controversy among medical professionals.

Mt. El'brus, rising to 18,481 feet in the Soviet Union, is Europe's highest mountain peak.

Groceries climb up

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Pork and beef prices generally fluctuated upward last week, but sugar prices declined for the fifth straight week, according to a survey of food prices by the Missouri Farm Bureau.

Otherwise, prices for poultry, milk, eggs, bread and potatoes generally remained stable, the survey of average prices for selected food items at 50 grocery stores across the state showed.

Sugar prices were down by 8 cents for a 10-pound bag to $5.34.

Blade roast was the big beef bargain, with the price per pound dropping by 14 cents from the week before to 86 cents per pound last week.

In addition, sirloin steak was down by 2 cents per pound to $1.64 and ground beef dropped a penny to 78 cents per pound.

But rib steak was up by 15 cents per pound to $1.49, T-bone steaks rose 10 cents a pound to $1.82, round steak jumped 2 cents a pound to $1.44 and arm roast was up a penny to $1.09.

Ham shank portions registerd the only pork price cut, dropping by 3 cents to 86 cents per pound, and pork steaks remained stable at $1.07 per pound. Butt portions were up 11 cents per pound to 97 cents, center cut pork chops increase 6 cents per pound to $1.60 and pork blade roast jumped by 2 cents per pound to $1.03.

Other prics last week were whole chickens for 52 cents a pound, milk $1.46 a gallon for whole and $1.37 for 2 per cent, extra large eggs 81 cents a dozen and medium eggs 73 cents a dozen. All were down one cent from the week before.

Bread was up one cect to 64 cents for a 1½-pound loaf.

Grade A large eggs and re.. potatoes remained unchanged from the week before, with the eggs registering 78 cents a dozen and the potatoes $1.02 for 10 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Brotherton

Miss Commer is bride of Brotherton

NEW MADRID-Miss Linda Susan Commer and James Lynn Brotherton were married Dec. 28 in First United Methodist Church. The Rev. Edward Watkins officiated the double-ring candelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Commer of New Madrid, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Brotherton of Kewanee.

An altar centered with an arched candelabrum, entwined with greenery and flanked by matching candelabra and urns of white chrysanthemums and royal blue iris, formed the background.

Pews along the bridal aisle were decorated with small baskets of white miniature carnations, baby's breath and blue iris. Triple-tiered candelabra marked the parents' pews.

Organist Frederick Nolley of Pacific played pre-nuptial selections and accompanied Mrs. Edward Watkins, who sang, "One Hand, One Heart", "More" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose a formal gown of candlelight bridal satin styled in a princess-line silhouette with attached cathedral train. Tiny seed pearls trimmed the front bodice and the high neckline. The butterfly sleeves, with a pleated chiffon shepherdess undersleeve, was also trimmed with pearls.

A double cathedral-length veil of imported silk illusion with a hand-rolled hem was attached to a pearl-trimmed, replica, Juliet cap of matching fabric, with a bow at the center.

She carried a colonial bridal bouquet of white roses and baby's breath, tied with white ribbon streamers.

Marsha Commer, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. Mary Kathryn Beitel of Rock Springs, Wyo., was matron of honor. Mrs. Julia Reynolds of Sikeston was bridesmaid, and Anne Michelle Brotherton, sister of the groom, was flower girl.

The bridal attendants wore formal gowns of royal blue velvet styled with softly flared skirts. A row of tiny buttons accented the fitted bodice from the high rounded neckline to the V-point of the raised waistline. The long full sleeves were banded in deep fitted cuffs closed with matching buttons.

They wore Juliet caps of royal blue velour with waist-length veils attached, and carried cononial bouquets of white and blue carnations.

The flower girl, dressed like the other bridal attendants, wore a blue bow in her hair. She carried a white basket of red rose petals.

Dennis Pipkin of Kewanee was best man. Groomsmen were Ralph Horton of Rolla and Edwin Phillips of New Madrid. Ron Buchanan of Gideon and Randy Beitel of Rock Springs, Wyo., were ushers.

The men of the wedding party, dressed in black tuxedos, had white carnation boutonnieres, except for the groom who wore a white rose.

The mother of the bride chose a jade-green formal gown with a fitted taffeta, sleeveless sheath and a long sleeve overdress of chiffon. The mother of the groom wore a formal, apricot, knit gown with matching long-sleeved jacket. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

After the ceremony, a reception and buff et were held at New Madrid Country Club.

The bride's table, covered with a white cloth and draped with net swags caught at intervals with ribbon bows and wedding bells, was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake. Matching candelabra, entwined with white carnations and baby's breath, were on each side. A silver punch bowl and silver coffee service were at opposite ends of the table.

Servers were Marge Horton of New Madrid, Mrs. Brenda Horton of Rolla and Mrs. Sue Woodall, sister of the bridegroom, of Kewanee.

Debbie Brotherton of Kewanee, sister of the bridegroom, attended the guest book table.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner on Dec. 27 at the Cottonboll Inn Restaurant at Marston.

The bride, who was employed for the summer at Delta Research Center in Portageville, was honored on Aug. 18 with a dinner and miscellaneous shower by her co-workers.

On Nov. 16, a miscellaneous shower in honor of the bride was given by Mrs. Floyce Maxwell, Mrs. Robert King and Mrs. Arline Avery in the home of Mrs. Avery.

Mrs. Randy Beitel and Marsha Commer were hostesses for a bridesmaid luncheon on Dec. 28 at New Madrid Country Club.

Out-of-town wedding guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Commer and Lenora and Malcolm Jr. of Jonestown, Miss.; Gene Brotherton of Downes, Ill.; Paul Brotherton and Roger and Darrell Brotherton of Pekin, Ill.; Mike Brotherton and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brotherton and Robin of Risco; Mr. and Mrs. Waymon Halford of Painton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Liebenrood, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Liebenrood and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Wilson and David, Stacy and Jamie of Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holyfield Jr.; Robert Reynolds, Paula Doyle, Kristi Anderson, Linda Spitzmiller, Carla Colwick, Tina Cline and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Delaney of Sikeston.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Davis and John Edwards of Cape Girardeau; Patty Johnson and Mike Hogan of Bertrand; Kathie Simpkins of East Prairie; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kimes and Leslie of Portageville; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Bondurant of Catron; and Mrs. Frederick Nolley of Pacific.

The couple lives in Cape Girardeau, where Mrs. Brotherton attends Southeast Missouri State University and Brotherton is employed.

Ann Landers
Ann makes mistake

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in regard to your answer to the 26-year-old woman who had been married four times, had five nervous breakdowns, two children, another on the way, and was considering marriage to a 24-year-old man. Anyone with such a history at 26 must have had a load of personal difficulties which contributed to her marital and emotional breakdowns.

Unless some significant progress has been made in working out these difficulties, it is unrealistic to expect that a fifth marriage would turn out any better than the first four.

Your advice -- "Grab him" -- seemed totally misdirected. You never even raised any of the important issues, such as: Is the woman receiving ongoing treatment at the present time? Is the man similar to any of her previous husbands (or her father)? Has HE been married before? Does HE have a psychiatric history? Sorry, but you blew it, doll. -- A Social Work Student

Dear Student: You are right. I did. Thank you for pointing out the inadequacy of my response. The reader was certainly entitled to a better answer than I gave her, and I appreciate your letting me know it.

Dear Miss Landers: I have been a housekeeper for a wealthy woman for four years, but I am not allowed to answer the door or the telephone. If an appliance is broken, I am not supposed to mention it because such things irritate her. ("They don't make things like they used to.")

I must serve meals seven days a week -- breakfast at 8:00 a.m., lunch at 12:30 p.m. and dinner at 6:30 p.m. If I announce a meal four minutes early I am told, "You are four minutes ahead of schedule."

On days when madame drinks a little more than usual she doesn't respond to the dinner call until 7:15 or 7:30 p.m. By then the food is dried out. She then complains that it is inedible.

This is a good-paying job, but is it worth the money if I get ulcers from aggravation? What do you advise? -- Heading For Loonsville

Dear Heading: Madame is not playing with a full deck. What's more, there is no way one can rationalize with a disturbed person who has the added problem of alcoholism.

Get another job even if it means less money. (Incidentally, honey, nobody should have to work seven days a week. Lincoln freed the slaves in 1863.)

Dear Ann Landers: I have this friend who really bugs me. Whenever we talk on the phone (which is quite often) our conversations are always interrupted by one or more of the children who have questions that require answers.

Without excusing herself she launches into lengthy discussions (or arguments) with the kids and I am left dangling on the other end.

Should I ask her to call me back when she is finished with her children so we can have a decent conversation? Am I wrong to think this is rude? Or must kids ALWAYS come first?--Cut Dead

Dear Cut: I have three lovely grandchildren who sometimes pull this on their mother, Margo. Here's how SHE handles it. In a pleasant tone (no anger) she says, "I'm talking to Gram now and when I'm through I'll be glad to answer all your questions. Run along."

Ann Landers discusses teen-age drinking -- its myths, its realities. Learn the facts by reading, "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Woman has 10 babies; only one girl survives

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Charlotte and Alvin Lange wanted a family of two girls and two boys. But when Mrs. Lange failed to conceive, they said they felt it was "the end of everything, of all our hoping."

Then they learned that Mrs. Lange could bear children with the help of the drug Pergonal.

She bore quadruplets. None survived.

She bore sextuplets less than 13 months later. Only one survived.

"I ask why it happened to us, why twice?" Mrs. Lange said in an interview. "Alvin always tells me life comes with no guarantees. We're not too religious, but we both believe things happen because God makes them. Without that belief we'd be in trouble because there wouldn't be anything that could help us understand."

Mrs. Lange, 26, never saw the quadruplets who died shortly after birth Nov. 23, 1973. She has held only one of her 10 babies — Jolene Rene, the sole surviving sextuplet born Dec. 8, 1974.

Jolene is gradually strengthening her grasp on life with intensive care at Valley Medical Center here. The Langes say they have been told they may be able to bring her home by March.

"Children fulfill a marriage," Mrs. Lange said, looking spry and rosy-cheeked despite her recent ordeal. "Even with a good marriage like ours there's always something lacking. We felt the two of us would be able to give something to children, to provide a good home."

Mrs. Lange said she is considering taking a fertility drug again.

Her husband, a $12,500-a-year armored car guard, said they would rather try to have another baby on their own before they would consider adopting.

"We want more children," said Lange, 31, who was an adopted child. He said they have not consulted an adoption agency, but they talked with friends familiar with the process and decided it was too long and complicated.

Dr. Vincent Nola, Mrs. Lange's obstetrician, said by the time she is ready for a third pregnancy new techniques may be available to help avert another multiple birth.

"She is a healthy woman," he said in an interview. "There is no reason for her not to go through another pregnancy."

The last previously reported sextuplets were born Jan. 11, 1974, to a Cape Town, South Africa woman after a full-term pregnancy, and the last in the United States were those of the Eugene Staneks of Lakewood, Colo. Five of the Staneks sextuplets survived. Mrs. Stanek also used a fertility drug.

Miss Harper plans early spring vows

Joyce Elaine Harper

URICH — Mr. and Mrs. Joy Harper announce the engagement of their daughter Joyce Elaine to Charles Lynn Eddy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eddy of New Madrid.

Miss Harper is a 1971 graduate of Raymore-Peculiar High School in Harrisonville and co-owner of Harper's Flowers in Harrisonville.

Eddy is a graduate of New Madrid High School and University of Missouri-Columbia. He is a district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service at Charleston.

A March 23 wedding is planned in Cleveland, Mo.

Doctor reports
Small dosage Vitamin C combats cold symptoms

TORONTO, Canada — Vitamin C -- heralded in the last few years as effective in combating the symptoms of colds when consumed in large doses -- may be effective in much smaller amounts than previously believed.

Dr. Terence W. Anderson, an epidemiologist at University of Toronto, reported on the therapeutic value of reduced dosages of Vitamin C at a conference in October in New York.

A 30 per cent reduction in the severity of cold symptoms was reported among persons who took only a small amount of Vitamin C -- less than 250 milligrams a day regularly and one gram a day when cold symptoms occurred, he reported. The results were based on a controlled study of more than 600 volunteers in Toronto.

For further relief of cold symptoms, other doctors continue to recommend aspirin, liquids and rest. Nasal stuffiness can be relieved with a decongestant spray or drops.

The amounts of Vitamin C recommended by the Canadian researcher represent only a fraction of those advocated by Dr. Linus Pauling three years ago in his book, "Vitamin C and the Common Cold." The subject remains a matter of controversy among medical professionals.

Mt. El'brus, rising to 18,481 feet in the Soviet Union, is Europe's highest mountain peak.

Groceries climb up

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Pork and beef prices generally fluctuated upward last week, but sugar prices declined for the fifth straight week, according to a survey of food prices by the Missouri Farm Bureau.

Otherwise, prices for poultry, milk, eggs, bread and potatoes generally remained stable, the survey of average prices for selected food items at 50 grocery stores across the state showed.

Sugar prices were down by 8 cents for a 10-pound bag to $5.34.

Blade roast was the big beef bargain, with the price per pound dropping by 14 cents from the week before to 86 cents per pound last week.

In addition, sirloin steak was down by 2 cents per pound to $1.64 and ground beef dropped a penny to 78 cents per pound.

But rib steak was up by 15 cents per pound to $1.49, T-bone steaks rose 10 cents a pound to $1.82, round steak jumped 2 cents a pound to $1.44 and arm roast was up a penny to $1.09.

Ham shank portions registerd the only pork price cut, dropping by 3 cents to 86 cents per pound, and pork steaks remained stable at $1.07 per pound. Butt portions were up 11 cents per pound to 97 cents, center cut pork chops increase 6 cents per pound to $1.60 and pork blade roast jumped by 2 cents per pound to $1.03.

Other prics last week were whole chickens for 52 cents a pound, milk $1.46 a gallon for whole and $1.37 for 2 per cent, extra large eggs 81 cents a dozen and medium eggs 73 cents a dozen. All were down one cent from the week before.

Bread was up one cect to 64 cents for a $1\frac{1}{2}$-pound loaf.

Grade A large eggs and re.. potatoes remained unchanged from the week before, with the eggs registering 78 cents a dozen and the potatoes $1.02 for 10 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Brotherton

Miss Commer is bride of Brotherton

NEW MADRID-Miss Linda Susan Commer and James Lynn Brotherton were married Dec. 28 in First United Methodist Church. The Rev. Edward Watkins officiated the double-ring candelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Commer of New Madrid, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Brotherton of Kewanee.

An altar centered with an arched candelabrum, entwined with greenery and flanked by matching candelabra and urns of white chrysanthemums and royal blue iris, formed the background.

Pews along the bridal aisle were decorated with small baskets of white miniature carnations, baby's breath and blue iris. Triple-tiered candelabra marked the parents' pews.

Organist Frederick Nolley of Pacific played pre-nuptial selections and accompanied Mrs. Edward Watkins, who sang, "One Hand, One Heart", "More" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose a formal gown of candlelight bridal satin styled in a princess-line silhouette with attached cathedral train. Tiny seed pearls trimmed the front bodice and the high neckline. The butterfly sleeves, with a pleated chiffon shepherdess undersleeve, was also trimmed with pearls.

A double cathedral-length veil of imported silk illusion with a hand-rolled hem was attached to a pearl-trimmed, replica, Juliet cap of matching fabric, with a bow at the center.

She carried a colonial bridal bouquet of white roses and baby's breath, tied with white ribbon streamers.

Marsha Commer, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. Mary Kathryn Beitel of Rock Springs, Wyo., was matron of honor. Mrs. Julia Reynolds of Sikeston was bridesmaid, and Anne Michelle Brotherton, sister of the groom, was flower girl.

The bridal attendants wore formal gowns of royal blue velvet styled with softly flared skirts. A row of tiny buttons accented the fitted bodice from the high rounded neckline to the V-point of the raised waistline. The long full sleeves were banded in deep fitted cuffs closed with matching buttons.

They wore Juliet caps of royal blue velour with waist-length veils attached, and carried cononial bouquets of white and blue carnations.

The flower girl, dressed like the other bridal attendants, wore a blue bow in her hair. She carried a white basket of red rose petals.

Dennis Pipkin of Kewanee was best man. Groomsmen were Ralph Horton of Rolla and Edwin Phillips of New Madrid. Ron Buchanan of Gideon and Randy Beitel of Rock Springs, Wyo., were ushers.

The men of the wedding party, dressed in black tuxedos, had white carnation boutonnieres, except for the groom who wore a white rose.

The mother of the bride chose a jade-green formal gown with a fitted taffeta, sleeveless sheath and a long sleeve overdress of chiffon. The mother of the groom wore a formal, apricot, knit gown with matching long-sleeved jacket. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

After the ceremony, a reception and buffet were held at New Madrid Country Club.

The bride's table, covered with a white cloth and draped with net swags caught at intervals with ribbon bows and wedding bells, was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake. Matching candelabra, entwined with white carnations and baby's breath, were on each side. A silver punch bowl and silver coffee service were at opposite ends of the table.

Servers were Marge Horton of New Madrid, Mrs. Brenda Horton of Rolla and Mrs. Sue Woodall, sister of the bridegroom, of Kewanee.

Debbie Brotherton of Kewanee, sister of the bridegroom, attended the guest book table.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner on Dec. 27 at the Cottonboll Inn Restaurant at Marston.

The bride, who was employed for the summer at Delta Research Center in Portageville, was honored on Aug. 18 with a dinner and miscellaneous shower by her co-workers.

On Nov. 16, a miscellaneous shower in honor of the bride was given by Mrs. Floyce Maxwell, Mrs. Robert King and Mrs. Arline Avery in the home of Mrs. Avery.

Mrs. Randy Beitel and Marsha Commer were hostesses for a bridesmaid luncheon on Dec. 28 at New Madrid Country Club.

Out-of-town wedding guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Commer and Lenora and Malcolm Jr. of Jonestown, Miss.; Gene Brotherton of Downes, Ill.; Paul Brotherton and Roger and Darrell Brotherton of Pekin, Ill.; Mike Brotherton and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brotherton and Robin of Risco; Mr. and Mrs. Waymon Halford of Painton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Liebenrood, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Liebenrood and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Wilson and David, Stacy and Jamie of Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holyfield Jr., Robert Reynolds, Paula Doyle, Kristi Anderson, Linda Spitzmiller, Carla Colwick, Tina Cline and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Delaney of Sikeston.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Davis and John Edwards of Cape Girardeau; Patty Johnson and Mike Hogan of Bertrand; Kathie Simpkins of East Prairie; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kimes and Leslie of Portageville; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Bondurant of Catron; and Mrs. Frederick Nolley of Pacific.

The couple lives in Cape Girardeau, where Mrs. Brotherton attends Southeast Missouri State University and Brotherton is employed.

Ann Landers
Ann makes mistake

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in regard to your answer to the 26-year-old woman who had been married four times, had five nervous breakdowns, two children, another on the way, and was considering marriage to a 24-year-old man. Anyone with such a history at 26 must have had a load of personal difficulties which contributed to her marital and emotional breakdowns.

Unless some significant progress has been made in working out these difficulties, it is unrealistic to expect that a fifth marriage would turn out any better than the first four.

Your advice -- "Grab him" -- seemed totally misdirected. You never even raised any of the important issues, such as: Is the woman receiving ongoing treatment at the present time? Is the man similar to any of her previous husbands (or her father)? Has HE been married before? Does HE have a psychiatric history? Sorry, but you blew it, doll. -- A Social Work Student

Dear Student: You are right. I did. Thank you for pointing out the inadequacy of my response. The reader was certainly entitled to a better answer than I gave her, and I appreciate your letting me know it.

Dear Miss Landers: I have been a housekeeper for a wealthy woman for four years, but I am not allowed to answer the door or the telephone. If an appliance is broken, I am not supposed to mention it because such things irritate her. ("They don't make things like they used to.")

I must serve meals seven days a week -- breakfast at 8:00 a.m., lunch at 12:30 p.m. and dinner at 6:30 p.m. If I announce a meal four minutes early I am told, "You are four minutes ahead of schedule."

On days when madame drinks a little more than usual she doesn't respond to the dinner call until 7:15 or 7:30 p.m. By then the food is dried out. She then complains that it is inedible.

This is a good-paying job, but is it worth the money if I get ulcers from aggravation? What do you advise? -- Heading For Loonsville

Dear Heading: Madame is not playing with a full deck. What's more, there is no way one can rationalize with a disturbed person who has the added problem of alcoholism.

Get another job even if it means less money. (Incidentally, honey, nobody should have to work seven days a week. Lincoln freed the slaves in 1863.)

Dear Ann Landers: I have this friend who really bugs me. Whenever we talk on the phone (which is quite often) our conversations are always interrupted by one or more of the children who have questions that require answers.

Without excusing herself she launches into lengthy discussions (or arguments) with the kids and I am left dangling on the other end.

Should I ask her to call me back when she is finished with her children so we can have a decent conversation? Am I wrong to think this is rude? Or must kids ALWAYS come first?--Cut Dead

Dear Cut: I have three lovely grandchildren who sometimes pull this on their mother, Margo. Here's how SHE handles it. In a pleasant tone (no anger) she says, "I'm talking to Gram now and when I'm through I'll be glad to answer all your questions. Run along."

Ann Landers discusses teen-age drinking -- its myths, its realities. Learn the facts by reading, "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Woman has 10 babies; only one girl survives

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Charlotte and Alvin Lange wanted a family of two girls and two boys. But when Mrs. Lange failed to conceive, they said they felt it was "the end of everything, of all our hoping."

Then they learned that Mrs. Lange could bear children with the help of the drug Pergonal.

She bore quadruplets. None survived.

She bore sextuplets less than 13 months later. Only one survived.

"I ask why it happened to us, why twice?" Mrs. Lange said in an interview. "Alvin always tells me life comes with no guarantees. We're not too religious, but we both believe things happen because God makes them. Without that belief we'd be in trouble because there wouldn't be anything that could help us understand."

Mrs. Lange, 26, never saw the quadruplets who died shortly after birth Nov. 23, 1973. She has held only one of her 10 babies — Jolene Rene, the sole surviving sextuplet born Dec. 8, 1974.

Jolene is gradually strengthening her grasp on life with intensive care at Valley Medical Center here. The Langes say they have been told they may be able to bring her home by March.

"Children fulfill a marriage," Mrs. Lange said, looking spry and rosy-cheeked despite her recent ordeal. "Even with a good marriage like ours there's always something lacking. We felt the two of us would be able to give something to children, to provide a good home."

Mrs. Lange said she is considering taking a fertility drug again.

Her husband, a $12,500-a-year armored car guard, said they would rather try to have another baby on their own before they would consider adopting.

"We want more children," said Lange, 31, who was an adopted child. He said they have not consulted an adoption agency, but they talked with friends familiar with the process and decided it was too long and complicated.

Dr. Vincent Nola, Mrs. Lange's obstetrician, said by the time she is ready for a third pregnancy new techniques may be available to help avert another multiple birth.

"She is a healthy woman," he said in an interview. "There is no reason for her not to go through another pregnancy."

The last previously reported sextuplets were born Jan. 11, 1974, to a Cape Town, South Africa woman after a full-term pregnancy, and the last in the United States were those of the Eugene Staneks of Lakewood, Colo. Five of the Staneks sextuplets survived. Mrs. Stanek also used a fertility drug.

Cooking Up

Good cook

Kevin Renaud, left, and his older brother, Mark, wait for their mother, Mrs. Marilyn Renaud of Wyatt to serve them one of her favorite dishes, Lemonade Pie. Mrs. Renaud is this week's featured cook.

By JOAN FEEZOR

WYATT–Lemonade Pie is jus one of the many recipe favorites of this week's featurec homemaker, Mrs. Marilyr Renaud of Wyatt.

Mrs. Renaud, daughter of Mrs Joe Lankheit Sr. of Charleston, is a graduate of St. Henry's High School in Charleston. She and her husband David are parents of four children, Shawn, 8, Sonya, 6, Mark, 2, and Kevin, 17 months. The family attends St. Henry's Catholic Church in Charleston.

Mrs. Renaud is a member of the Merry Mixers Extension Club, St. Henry's Home and School and Daughters of Isabella. Her hobbies include cooking and canning.

Desserts are always popular, whether with family or guests. A simple but very delicious and elegant dessert is the Lemonade Pie. When made it is ready to eat in just 30 minutes.

Mrs. Renaud commented that servings should be small since the pie is so rich.

LEMONADE PIE

Graham cracker pie crust
Sweetened condensed milk
6 oz. can lemonade
4 ½ oz. whipped topping

Mix topping with sweetened condensed milk, then blend in lemonade. Pour into pie crust. Put into refrigerator. Ready to eat in 30 minutes.

A specialty with Mrs. Renaud is her Italian Spaghetti. She stated that this is a good party dish that can easily be doubled or tripled and freezes well.

ITALIAN SPAGHETTI SAUCE

½ cup onions
1 lb. ground beef
2 tbsp. oil
2 cloves garlic or ¼ tsp. garlic powder for each bud
4 cups tomatoes
2 cups tomato paste
3 oz. can mushrooms
¼ cup parsley, chopped
1 ½ tsp. oregano
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. thyme
Dash of pepper
1 bay leaf
1 cup water

In large skillet, cook onion in hot oil until almost tender. Add ground beef and garlic; brown lightly. Add remaining ingredients and simmer uncovered two to four hours. Pour over cooked spaghetti.

The Renaud family attends many potluck dinners, and Mrs. Renaud has two recipes that make most of them. Rice Casserole and Doctor Bird Cake are easy to prepare and convenient to carry.

RICE CASSEROLE

1 cup long grain rice
1 can beef consomme
1 can chicken broth
1 can mushrooms, drained
Little less than a stick of butter

Mix equal amount of chicken broth and beef consomme. Grease casserole dish. Mix ingredients together and cut butter around over mixture. Bake one hour in 350-degree oven.

DOCTOR BIRD CAKE

3 cups sifted flour
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. baking soda
2 cups sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 ½ cups cooking oil
1 ½ tsp. vanilla
3 eggs
2 cups diced bananas
8 oz. can crushed pineapple, with juice

Measure dry ingredients-flour, soda, cinnamon, salt and sugar-then sift together. Add diced bananas to dry ingredients, along with oil, vanilla, eggs and pineapple with juice. Stir mixture to blend-not beaten.

Pour into greased tube pan and bake in 350-degree oven for one hour and 20 minutes. Cool on rack without removing from pan. Nuts may be added.

As any mother can testify, children are always hungry when they arrive home from school. Favorite treats of the Renaud children include Lemon Supreme Cake and Hot Chocolate.

Bananas are valued in special diets because they're low in sodium, low in fat and have no cholesterol.

Coffee Corner

By CHERIE BLANTON

All this cold weather makes a nice warm kitchen feel real good, but don't just stand there feeling good – make something good too!

Haven't eaten these cookies in years, but made them the other day and they're just as good as I remembered.

Ice Box Cookies

1 cup oleo
2 cups packed brown sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tbsp. warm water
1 cup chopped pecans
3 cups sifted flour

Dissolve baking soda in water. Cream oleo and sugar, add eggs, flour and vanilla. Now add soda mixture and then pecans. Shape on wax paper into 2 long rolls and chill overnite. (I keep dough in freezer for indefinite periods). Slice and bake on greased cookie sheet at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes.

++

Mrs. Ed Branum called me the other day and gave me a favorite recipe of hers. The mixture can be used to make pancakes with or , can be used for muffins.

Pancake Muffins

1 egg
2 tbsp. salad oil
1 tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
1 cup flour
1 cup buttermilk

Mix all this together and pour onto griddle if you want pancakes, if muffins, grease a muffin tin, fill ⅔ full and then drop 1 tsp. of any kind of jelly into each muffin tin and bake 350 degrees about 20-25 minutes.

++

Here's a new and simple cake or brownie type dessert the family will love!

Heavenly Hash

Melt 1 stick butter and 1 square semi-sweet chocolate. Remove from heat and add
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking powder
2 eggs
½ tsp. vanilla

Bake in a greased 8 x 8 pan at 350 degrees for 30 minutes (no longer)

Frosting: Combine 2 oz. [illegible] and cool.

Ice with this:

1 stick oleo
1 box powdered sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk.

Mix [illegible] you'll go crazy over.

1 cake yeast
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
2 cups lukewarm water
1 egg
3 tbsp melted Crisco
5½ cups flour

Crumble yeast in bowl, add sugar, salt and water. Add slightly beaten egg. Sift flour before measuring. Add 3 cups of flour and mix well. Add Crisco and rest of flour. Let sit out covered till it rises double. Punch down and put covered in refrigerator. If made that morning can be used that night.

Roll out and make into rolls, let rise again and bake 400 degrees, about 15 minutes.

Now, if your family has a sweet tooth and thinks caramels rolls are about the best thing in the world try this!

Take above dough and roll out about ¼ inch thick. Melt some butter and spread over dough, then sprinkle well with sugar and cinnamon. Roll up into a long roll and slice and put in a pan and when they rise bake as above. This dough may be rolled out and then kept in refrigerator in a pan covered for as long as 3 days without hurting it, just take out and let rise before you put pan in oven. Now, right before you bring out of oven, melt one stick oleo in a skillet, and dump in some brown sugar (about ¾ cup) and stir on medium heat until it gets thick (may have to add more sugar), and then when rolls come out pour this caramel mixture over top and serve at once – you better make lots and lots when you do this cause they go like popcorn.

New corn flour equals hamburger protein value

By T. LEE HUGHES
Associated Press Writer

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)- Researchers here say they have created a new corn flour with nearly as much protein as hamburger. They say the product will soon be on the market.

It will be the first use of corn, the nation's largest grain crop, as a protein fortifier, said Dr. George E. Inglett, a chemist with the U.S. Agricultural Research Service.

Lauhoff Grain Co., of Danville, Ill., the nation's largest dry corn miller, says it hopes to begin selling the flour within a year.

The flour is made from corn germ and could provide up to five-sixths the protein of cooked hamburger, said Charles W. Blessin, a research service chemist.

Blessin said he thinks the flour generally could sell for a fraction of the cost of hamburger, but a Lauhoff executive said the firm has not settled on a price.

"We want to see what the acceptance is...in the marketplace," said Donald Smith, vice president of production for Lauhoff.

Smith said the flour will be sold to other food manufacturers for use in their products but probably not directly to consumers.

The flour can be used as a meat extender and protein fortifier in baked goods, snacks and cereals, Blessin said. He said it will provide a flavor alternative to soybeans, now widely used as a protein source.

The flour was developed by Inglett, Blessin and two other colleagues at the federal agency's Northern Regional Research Laboratory here.

Miss Dixon weds

ADVANCE--Miss Pamela Jo Dixon and Randel Neal Fuller were united in marriage Dec. 21 at the Church of Christ. Minister Billy Dean Davis, father of the bride, officiated.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Neal Fuller of Chaffee.

Ruth Wendel of Jackson was pianist and accompanied Holly Turner of Potosi, who sang.

The bride wore a gown of ivory delustered satin and Chantilly lace. The bodice, fashioned with a bib effect, was trimmed in ruffles. The A-line skirt was trimmed in Chantilly lace. Her chapel-length mantilla was held by a bandeau of lace. She carried a Bible covered with red sweetheart roses, white pompoms and baby's breath.

The bride chose her sister, Sandra Kay Dixon, as maid of honor. Mrs. Roy Feiste of Overland was matron of honor. Mrs. Paul Perry, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Kimberly Sharrock of Patton was junior bridesmaid.

The gowns were styled like the one worn by the bride. Two attendants wore green and two wore red.

Jesse Neal Fuller, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Tom Hinkebein and John Fuller, brother of bridegroom, of Chaffee and Brent Cline of Jonesboro, Ark., were groomsmen.

Michael Dean Davis, brother of bride, and Ronald Ray Moyer of Chaffee ushered.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Advance High School and a junior at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau. The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of Chaffee High School and attends the university. He is manager of Broadway Pawn Shop in Cape Girardeau.

The couple will live on Advance Route One.

Women's year 1975 needs male participation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — International Women's Year 1975 has arrived and its organizers at the United Nations have a problem. They need male involvement on a large scale.

"I am very interested in seeing that enough men attend" the Women's Year world conference from June 23 to July 4 at Mexico City, says U.N. Assistant Secretary-General Helvi Sipila.

Mrs. Sipila, of Finland, has been named secretary-general of Women's Year and of its main event, the international conference.

Male involvement is essential, she said recently, because "women alone can't change what has to be changed" to create true equality. Governments, run mostly by males, have to be influenced.

"We are emphasizing that there should be both men and women attending," Mrs. Sipila said. She said it was a good sign that many countries have named men to head their delegations. Ideally, delegations should be made up half of men and half of women, she said.

Mrs. Sipila began the year with trips to Western Europe and the Middle East to drum up support and funds for the Women's Year programs.

U.N. officials hope to collect between $2 million and $3 million for Women's Year activities, including $370,000 for the conference itself. About $800,000 has been received, they said. The largest contributions are $500,000 from Sweden and $100,000 from the United States.

Women's Year activity actually began Dec. 10 when Princess Ashraf Pahlevi of Iran presented Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim a declaration of support endorsed by 58 heads of states.

Waldheim then proclaimed 1975 International Women's Year, declaring that "we must frankly admit" that there is still a wide gulf between the principle of equality of the sexes and the practice.

"Despite the advances of the past 30 years," Waldheim said, "discrimination against women remains a pervasive fact of life in many countries and thus represents a major obstacle to real social, economic and political progress in the world."

Waldheim stressed that discrimination against women means discrimination against "half the population of this planet."

Miss McCommack marries, Bradford

ILLMO — Miss Rebbeca Jo McCommack and Jerome Bradford Amrhein were married Dec. 27 at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The Rev. Thomas Allen officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCommack, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Amrhein.

Christy Davis of Scott City was organist. Rick Wibbenmyer of Cape Girardeau was soloist, and Dennis Drury of Kelso played guitar.

The bride wore a gown of white silk and Venise lace with a fitted bodice, net yoke, fitted sleeves and A-line skirt. Her veil was trimmed in lace tatting and held by a peau de soie Camelot cap. She carried a bouquet of red carnations and white snow crystal pompons.

The bride chose her sister, Carrie Lee McCommack, as maid of honor. Debbie McCommack, another sister of the bride, and Valerie and Tanya Amrhein, sisters of the bridegroom, served as bridesmaids.

They wore gowns of matte jersey trimmed in sequins with matching capes and hoods with maribou trim. The maid of honor's gown was green, and the bridesmaids wore red. They carried fur muffs with holly and evergreen sprigs.

Bill Davis Jr. of Scott City was best man. Calvin Eifert Jr. of Illmo, Rodney Cox of Cape Girardeau and Jim Bollinger of Scott City were groomsmen. Jimmie Gibbar and Bill Carroll ushered.

The bride is employed by Missouri Pacific Hospital in St. Louis. The bridegroom is a third year student at St. Louis College of Pharmacy.

The couple will live in St. Louis.

Officers installed

Helping Hands Club installs new officers

WYATT — The Helping Hands Homemakers Extension Club installed officers Jan. 15 at the home of Mrs. John Moxley on Route Three.

Installed were: Mrs. Marion Boulnois, president; Mrs. Sharon Buchanan, vice president; Mrs. Faye Moxley, treasurer; and Mrs. Naomi Brantley, secretary.

Each club member answered roll call by repeating a foreign phrase and displaying an object from a foreign country.

During the business meeting presided over by Mrs. Boulnois, the club made plans for the coming year. Members voted to have a booth during the Dogwood-Azalea Festival in Charleston, to make afghans for the elderly and to collect canned goods to be used for emergencies. Program chairmen were also appointed.

Mrs. Boulnois presented a program explaining the extension homemakers, emblem, collect and promise.

After the meeting adjourned, refreshments were served.

The February meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Bill Feezor. The program on health will feature a talk by Jack Burke of the Mississippi County Health Department.

Miss Williamson to plan wedding

"We are emphasizing that there should be both men and women attending," Mrs. Sipila said. She said it was a good sign that many countries have named men to head their delegations. Ideally, delegations should be made up half of men and half of women, she said.

Mrs. Sipila began the year with trips to Western Europe and the Middle East to drum up support and funds for the Women's Year programs.

U.N. officials hope to collect between $2 million and $3 million for Women's Year activities, including $370,000 for the conference itself. About $800,000 has been received, they said. The largest contributions are $500,000 from Sweden and $100,000 from the United States.

Women's Year activity actually began Dec. 10 when Princess Ashraf Pahlevi of Iran presented Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim a declaration of support endorsed by 58 heads of states.

Waldheim then proclaimed 1975 International Women's Year, declaring that "we must frankly admit" that there is still a wide gulf between the principle of equality of the sexes and the practice.

"Despite the advances of the past 30 years," Waldheim said, "discrimination against women remains a pervasive fact of life in many countries and thus represents a major obstacle to real social, economic and political progress in the world."

Waldheim stressed that discrimination against women means discrimination against "half the population of this planet."

Miss McCommack marries, Bradford

ILLMO — Miss Rebbeca Jo McCommack and Jerome Bradford Amrhein were married Dec. 27 at St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The Rev. Thomas Allen officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCommack, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Amrhein.

Christy Davis of Scott City was organist. Rick Wibbenmyer of Cape Girardeau was soloist, and Dennis Drury of Kelso played guitar.

The bride wore a gown of white silk and Venise lace with a fitted bodice, net yoke, fitted sleeves and A-line skirt. Her veil was trimmed in lace tatting and held by a peau de soie Camelot cap. She carried a bouquet of red carnations and white snow crystal pompons.

The bride chose her sister, Carrie Lee McCommack, as maid of honor. Debbie McCommack, another sister of the bride, and Valerie and Tanya Amrhein, sisters of the bridegroom, served as bridesmaids.

They wore gowns of matte jersey trimmed in sequins with matching capes and hoods with maribou trim. The maid of honor's gown was green, and the bridesmaids wore red. They carried fur muffs with holly and evergreen sprigs.

Bill Davis Jr. of Scott City was best man. Calvin Eifert Jr. of Illmo, Rodney Cox of Cape Girardeau and Jim Bollinger of Scott City were groomsmen. Jimmie Gibbar and Bill Carroll ushered.

The bride is employed by Missouri Pacific Hospital in St. Louis. The bridegroom is a third year student at St. Louis College of Pharmacy.

The couple will live in St. Louis.

Officers installed

Helping Hands Club installs new officers

WYATT — The Helping Hands Homemakers Extension Club installed officers Jan. 15 at the home of Mrs. John Moxley on Route Three.

Installed were: Mrs. Marion Boulnois, president; Mrs. Sharon Buchanan, vice president; Mrs. Faye Moxley, treasurer; and Mrs. Naomi Brantley, secretary.

Each club member answered roll call by repeating a foreign phrase and displaying an object from a foreign country.

During the business meeting presided over by Mrs. Boulnois, the club made plans for the coming year. Members voted to have a booth during the Dogwood-Azalea Festival in Charleston, to make afghans for the elderly and to collect canned goods to be used for emergencies. Program chairmen were also appointed.

Mrs. Boulnois presented a program explaining the extension homemakers, emblem, collect and promise.

After the meeting adjourned, refreshments were served.

The February meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Bill Feezor. The program on health will feature a talk by Jack Burke of the Mississippi County Health Department.

Miss Williamson to plan wedding

JACKSON — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williamson announce the engagement of their daughter Donna Lou to Alan Dean Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Riley of Advance.

Miss Williamson is a 1974 graduate of Jackson High School and attends Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau.

Riley, a 1972 graduate of Advance High School, is employed by Charmin Paper Products, Inc. in Cape Girardeau.

No wedding date has been set.

Sikeston neighborhood Girl Scouts will deliver cookies to customers Jan. 24-31.

Office expense procedure could cause more problems

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Members of the Missouri House have begun considering the ramification of revision of the way they pay their office expenses, and a number of them indicate the new procedure could cause more problems than it will solve.

The change, offered in a resolution from the House Accounts Committee which watches the purse strings, was approved Monday and provides starting next month that each of the 163 representatives receives a $400 monthly allotment to cover all his legislative expenses.

But the resolution, approved on a voice vote, would not require representatives to publicly account for how the expense allotment is spent or to return any unused funds to the state.

The revised plan does, however, authorize the accounts committee to set up a procedure under which a House member "may" return unspent sums if he wants too.

A number of legislators expressed beliefs Tuesday that the new plan could be in violation of the Constitution, which specifies that no legislator can receive "any compensation in addition to his salary as a member of the General Assembly for any services rendered."

The revised system calls for the representatives to use the monthly allotment for office supplies, stationary, stamps, telephone expenses and a home-district secretary, all of which were paid for out of a general House fund in the past. That old system is still used in the Senate, and it is authorized by state law.

But under the new House plan, an estimated $100 a month has been included in the allotment, according to minority Floor Leader Robert O. Snyder of Kirkwood, to cover "miscellaneous non-reimbursed expenses" which have occurred in the past.

That portion of the allotment was seen as a way to enable members, especially those from large rural districts, to recover expenses incurred in serving their constituents.

Under state law, legislators receive $8,400 a year in salary and $25 a day to cover expenses incurred when they come to the Capitol for legislative sessions plus an allowance of 12 cents a mile to cover travel to Jefferson City from their homes and back. The law does not authorize any other individual expenses or payments.

The new system, which needs no approval from the Senate since it is strictly a House matter, won its support because most representatives felt it would even out the amount of expense funds that could be claimed by legislators as well as give each legislator more flexibility in their legislative operations.

While the specific manner for implementation of the new plan has yet to be outlined by the Accounts Committee, it was suggested during House debate on the revision that the money would just be issued in a monthly check to each representative, who would then assume all responsibility for it.

"It's scary," said Rep. Joe Holt, D-Fulton, who has gained a reputation for fiscal accountability. Holt, an attorney, said he plans to set up a separate bank account for the monthly allotment so there will be no problems with final reporting of the funds to the Internal Revenue Service.

But he said he was afraid some representatives might put the annual $4,800 expense allotment in their regular bank accounts and then run into big problems when it comes time to account for the funds before the IRS.

During debate on the floor, Rep. Harold Dickson, R-California, asked in what he claimed was all seriousness whether attorney fees could be paid for out of the allotment "to keep us out of jail."

And while the question was not treated seriously on the floor, several House members believe there could be problems involving comingling of funds resulting if less than strict control is kept on the monthly checks.

Teen suicide rate increase blamed on 'fairy tale' beliefs

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Amy, 15, had always gotten straight As in school, and her parents were extremely upset when she got a B on her report card.

"If I fail in what I do," Amy told her parents, "I fail in what I am."

The message was part of Amy's suicide note.

Dr. Darold Treffert, director of the Winnebago Mental Health Institute at Oshkosh, Wis., places part of the blame for a sharp increase in teen-age suicides on what he calls "The American Fairy Tale."

He says the number of teen-age suicides in the United States has tripled in the last decade, to an estimated 30 a day, and that more than half the patients in the nation's psychiatric hospitals are under age 21.

He says the "fairy tale" has five themes: that more possessions mean more happiness, that a person who does or produces more is more important, that everyone must belong and identify with some larger group, that perfect mental health means no problems and that a person is abnormal unless constantly happy.

"For some, the American Fairy Tale ends in suicide or pyschiatric hospitals, but for countless others, it never ends at all," Treffert said during an interview.

He said millions of Americans are plagued throughout their lives by a gnawing emptiness or meaninglessness expressed not as a fear of what may happen to them, but rather as a fear that nothing will happen to them.

He said Americans must stop evaluating themselves according to what they own or what they have done and learn to accept and cope with various mental and emotional problems.

"A whole generation has come to feel that it is un-American to experience any of these emotions," he said.

He says parents should avoid trying to make their children live up to the standards of the "fairy tale," and treat them as individuals, as people rather than possessions.

Office expense procedure could cause more problems

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Members of the Missouri House have begun considering the ramification of revision of the way they pay their office expenses, and a number of them indicate the new procedure could cause more problems than it will solve.

The change, offered in a resolution from the House Accounts Committee which watches the purse strings, was approved Monday and provides starting next month that each of the 163 representatives receives a $400 monthly allotment to cover all his legislative expenses.

But the resolution, approved on a voice vote, would not require representatives to publicly account for how the expense allotment is spent or to return any unused funds to the state.

The revised plan does, however, authorize the accounts committee to set up a procedure under which a House member "may" return unspent sums if he wants too.

A number of legislators expressed beliefs Tuesday that the new plan could be in violation of the Constitution, which specifies that no legislator can receive "any compensation in addition to his salary as a member of the General Assembly for any services rendered."

The revised system calls for the representatives to use the monthly allotment for office supplies, stationary, stamps, telephone expenses and a home-district secretary, all of which were paid for out of a general House fund in the past. That old system is still used in the Senate, and it is authorized by state law.

But under the new House plan, an estimated $100 a month has been included in the allotment, according to minority Floor Leader Robert O. Snyder of Kirkwood, to cover "miscellaneous non-reimbursed expenses" which have occurred in the past.

That portion of the allotment was seen as a way to enable members, especially those from large rural districts, to recover expenses incurred in serving their constituents.

Under state law, legislators receive $8,400 a year in salary and $25 a day to cover expenses incurred when they come to the Capitol for legislative sessions plus an allowance of 12 cents a mile to cover travel to Jefferson City from their homes and back. The law does not authorize any other individual expenses or payments.

The new system, which needs no approval from the Senate since it is strictly a House matter, won its support because most representatives felt it would even out the amount of expense funds that could be claimed by legislators as well as give each legislator more flexibility in their legislative operations.

While the specific manner for implementation of the new plan has yet to be outlined by the Accounts Committee, it was suggested during House debate on the revision that the money would just be issued in a monthly check to each representative, who would then assume all responsibility for it.

"It's scary," said Rep. Joe Holt, D-Fulton, who has gained a reputation for fiscal accountability. Holt, an attorney, said he plans to set up a separate bank account for the monthly allotment so there will be no problems with final reporting of the funds to the Internal Revenue Service.

But he said he was afraid some representatives might put the annual $4,800 expense allotment in their regular bank accounts and then run into big problems when it comes time to account for the funds before the IRS.

During debate on the floor, Rep. Harold Dickson, R-California, asked in what he claimed was all seriousness whether attorney fees could be paid for out of the allotment "to keep us out of jail."

And while the question was not treated seriously on the floor, several House members believe there could be problems involving comingling of funds resulting if less than strict control is kept on the monthly checks.

Teen suicide rate increase blamed on 'fairy tale' beliefs

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Amy, 15, had always gotten straight As in school, and her parents were extremely upset when she got a B on her report card.

"If I fail in what I do," Amy told her parents, "I fail in what I am."

The message was part of Amy's suicide note.

Dr. Darold Treffert, director of the Winnebago Mental Health Institute at Oshkosh, Wis., places part of the blame for a sharp increase in teen-age suicides on what he calls "The American Fairy Tale."

He says the number of teenage suicides in the United States has tripled in the last decade, to an estimated 30 a day, and that more than half the patients in the nation's psychiatric hospitals are under age 21.

He says the "fairy tale" has five themes: that more possessions mean more happiness, that a person who does or produces more is more important, that everyone must belong and identify with some larger group, that perfect mental health means no problems and that a person is abnormal unless constantly happy.

"For some, the American Fairy Tale ends in suicide or pyschiatric hospitals, but for countless others, it never ends at all," Treffert said during an interview Tuesday.

He said millions of Americans are plagued throughout their lives by a gnawing emptiness or meaninglessness expressed not as a fear of what may happen to them, but rather as a fear that nothing will happen to them.

He said Americans must stop evaluating themselves according to what they own or what they have done and learn to accept and cope with various mental and emotional problems.

"A whole generation has come to feel that it is un-American to experience any of these emotions," he said.

He says parents should avoid trying to make their children live up to the standards of the "fairy tale," and treat them as individuals, as people rather than possessions.

Hearnes campaign to go on

JEFFERSON CITY — Former governor Warren E. Hearnes has put an end to speculation about his plans for the future. He told a Jefferson City news conference last week that he wants to replace Stuart Symington as the U.S. senator from Missouri in 1976.

"I feel that my ten years as a legislator, four years as Secretary of State, and eight years as Governor, more than qualifies me to serve Missouri as its United States Senator," Hearnes said.

The Charleston Democrat had been considered a possible candidate for the Senate since he completed his last term as governor two years ago. However, some observers felt that ongoing federal investigations into his administration and personal finances would discourage him from seeking the office.

The Internal Revenue Service is reported examining Hearnes' income tax records, and a federal grand jury in Kansas City is investigating possible illegal activities in his administration during his two terms as governor.

Hearnes termed the federal investigations "a personal affront" and said he would continue to campaign for the Senate seat even if he were indicted by the federal grand jury.

"If I am indicted and they try the case in Kansas City, I'll campaign at night in the Kansas City area," Hearnes said. "Under no circumstances will I succumb to those who seek to besmirch my name and end my political career by hiding themselves behind the tools of law and justice."

The former governor released a summary of the state and federal taxes paid by him for the years 1968 through 1973.

The figures showed that in 1968, Hearnes had an adjusted gross income of $38,192; a taxable income of $27,310; and that he paid $7,365 in federal taxes and $108 in state taxes. In 1973, his first year out of office, the figures showed an adjusted gross income of $119,038; a taxable income of $102,438; with federal taxes of $43,265 and state taxes of $3,691.

Hearnes said the figures for 1973 included $58,894.80 from the Bootheel Committee for Hearnes. He said he paid $28,948 in federal taxes and $1,819.20 in state taxes on that money with the remainder -- $28,127.60 -- placed in a Hearnes for Senate Committee bank account.

Hearnes said he also had an additional $142,000, the "residue" of his 1968 campaign for governor, which would be used in the race for the Senate.

For the present, Hearnes is facing the incumbent Symington and former Jackson County prosecutor Joe Teasdale for the Democratic nomination. The 73-year-old Symington has served in the Senate for four consecutive terms. Teasdale was an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1972 when he was defeated by Ed Dowd.

The Republican candidate may be Attorney General John C. Danforth. Danforth has been quoted as saying he will either make the race in 1976 or retire from politics.

While Hearnes was announcing plans to win a new public job, George Lehr was busy settling into his.

Lehr, a Democrat and former Jackson County executive, defeated incumbent John Ashcroft in the state Auditor's race in November. He was inaugurated on Monday and announcing plans for a comprehensive audit of the state's property tax rates on Tuesday.

Lehr said gross inequities exist in property tax assessments across the state, and an audit by his predecessor didn't go far enough.

Ashcroft, in the meantime, will remain in Jefferson City. He has found employment as an assistant attorney general in the office of Attorney General John C. Danforth.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond presented his 1975-76 budget to a joint session of the Missouri General Assembly, and got the expected reaction from the Democratic leadership.

Sen. William J. Cason, Senate president pro tem, said the $2.3 billion budget, described by Bond as "austere", was in fact too conservative. And House majority floor leader Kenneth K. Rothman said the governor had underestimated project revenues and the budget could absorb a $20 million increase.

Bond recommended a 4.6 per cent increase in state expenditures for next year including $6 million for increases in aid to dependent children, funding for the state junior college system, and salary and insurance benefits for judges. Increases also weere recommended for mental health, elementary and secondary education, and the Department of Social Services.

Neva Barnbrook

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Mrs. Neva P. Barnbrook, 87, a former Charleston, Mo., resident, died at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday in St. Joseph Hospital at Flint, Mich., while visiting a daughter.

She was born Oct. 17, 1887 in Louisville, Ky., and had lived in Memphis for 23 years, where she was a member of Colonial Baptist Church.

Her husband, John F. Barnbrook, preceded her in death in September 1951.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. James Greer of Flint, Mich., Mrs. John Davis of Spartanburg, S.C., Mrs. James Strong of Greenwood, Miss., and Mrs. Morris Sanders and Mrs. Joe Nichols of Memphis; two stepdaughters, Mrs. Mary Jane Steckel and Mrs. Charlotte Smith of Rock Island, Ill., one stepdaughter-in-law, Mrs. Laura Barnbook of Charleston, Mo.; and 13 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Friends may call after 6 p.m. Thursday at McMikle Funeral Home in Charleston, where services are scheduled at 10 a.m. Friday. The Rev. Harris Counce, pastor of Colonial Baptist Church in Memphis, will officiate.

Burial will follow at IOOF Cemetery near Charleston.

R.L. Patterson

MALDEN--Ralph Lee Patterson, 82, a retired railroad employe, died Monday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

He was born Feb. 18, 1892 in Illinois.

In November 1918, he married Emma Jones, who preceded him in death.

Survivors include four sons, Carles Paul Patterson of Hudson, Fla., Billy Lee Patterson of Clarkton, David Densil Patterson of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Donald Ray Patterson of Memphis, Tenn.; two daughters, Hazel Virginia Guinn of Cambridge, Mass., and Edna Mae Lester of Corunna, Mich.; and 14 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

Services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Thursday in Bradshaw Funeral Home with the Rev. Cecil Keller officiating.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Ulis R. Wilburn

Ulis R. "Bud" Wilburn, 56, of Route Two died at 6:30 a.m. today in Veterans Hospital at Poplar Bluff.

He was born Feb. 27, 1918 in the Big Opening community in New Madrid County to the late James and Nelia Kinder Wilburn.

He was a custom harvester. He served in the Army during World War II and was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion and the Eagles Lodge.

970,200 unemployment claims filed this month

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly one million more Americans filed new claims for unemployment insurance during the first full week of 1975, the Labor Department said today, signalling a big jump in the nation's unemployment rate for January.

The department said 970,200 new claims were filed in the week ended Jan. 11. That is an increase of 289,000 over the previous week and the highest in any week since unemployment compensation was first paid in 1937 during the great depression.

The new claims were in addition to the 4,620,200 jobless persons who already were collecting unemployment checks for the week ended Jan. 4. That also was a record since the program went into effect 38 years ago.

That week the unemployment rate for the 65 million Americans covered by unemployment insurance rose from 6 per cent to 7.1 per cent, the highest rate since January 1961.

Not all workers are covered by unemployment insurance, but new legislation which became effective earlier this month extended temporary coverage to another 12 million Americans.

Jobless figures down in December

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.(AP) — State officials were pleasantly surprised by the December unemployment figures for Missouri, but stuck to their prediction of a 6.8 per cent jobless rate peak for January or February.

The December rate released Tuesday was 5.8 per cent, compared to a 6.2 per cent rate officials had predicted earlier this month.

Tom Righthouse, chief analyst for the state Division of Employment Security, said the state prediction had been wrong because factors other than the unemployment claims had changed the rate.

"But we're still looking for 6.5 to 6.8 per cent unemployment for January or February," he said. "We had the biggest number of claims last week we've had in the history of the state employment agency."

The state jobless rate has reached a level where the state will start paying extended 13-week unemployment benefits beginning Monday. The extended benefits are for those who have exhausted their 26 weeks of jobless benefits.

Additional guards hired following stabbing death

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.(AP) — The fatal stabbing of a prison guard at Missouri State Penitentiary for Men here has spurred prison officials to hire an additional 40 guards for the prison.

After meeting with Gov. Christopher S. Bond Tuesday, prison officials said federal public service employment funds will be used to hire the guards.

No prisoners have been charged yet in connection with the murder of Lt. Harold V. Atkinson, 61, of Holts Summit. Atkinson was found stabbed 69 times Monday night in a prison cell.

A note nearby was found saying, "We want lower prices and better trdeatment or there will be another and another." Five suspects have been taken into custody.

The lower prices demand referred to prices in the prison's canteen and commissary, George Camp, deputy director of social services, said. Prisoners have complained about high prices, but no formal written grievance has been filed, Camp said.

Prison Warden Don Wyrick described the guard's murder as "a sign of the times."

Wyrick said inmates are getting "meaner and tougher, and with longer sentences than before."

Gun, television taken from home

CHARLESTON — Police are investigating a burglary at the Ruby Giles home, 308 Oliver St., which occurred sometime between 3 and 9 p.m. Monday.

A .38-caliber revolver, television set and a radio-stereo combination were reported stolen.

Young Democrats elect new officers

MARSTON — Cloyce Poore of New Madrid was named president of the New Madrid County Young Democrats Club to succeed Jim W. Farrenburg of New Madrid at a Jan. 11 dinner meeting in the Cottonboll Inn Restaurant.

Also named as 1975 officers were Rick Towery of Morehouse, first vice president; Sam Pikey of Conran, second vice president; Jim Farrenburg, treasurer; and Mrs. Levinna Kirksey of Risco, secretary.

Serving on the nominating committee were: Doyle Hicks, chairman and Bob Pullium, Charles Ice, Harland Gilmer, Ronnie Patterson and Joe Hunter.

The planning committee for 1975 includes Poore, David Snider, Buck Hunter, William Baird, Gene Curtis and Lynn Akins, with Poore serving as chairman.

The group planned a Democratic dinner during February or March at the New Madrid County R-1 Vocational-Technical School at Howardville. Guest speakers for the dinner will include Warren Hearnes of Charleston, former Missouri governor, and Congressman Jerry Litton of Chillicothe.

Forty-eight young Democratic men and women of the county attended the meeting.

This division has several administrators and nine field representatives. Frank "Buz" Sullivan of Charleston, who was also present at the meeting, is one of the representatives and is known as an area community development specialist.

A new program of community betterment is being developed, Allen reported. This is the All-Missouri Certified Cities program which is designed for cities with populations of 5,000 to 50,000. The new program will be introduced soon, Allen reported, but will not do away with the current Five-Star program which is designed primarily for smaller cities.

Following Allen's comments the Bootheel Industrial Development Council voted to endorse the idea of a foreign office for the state of Missouri and lend any assistance they can.

Those present then discussed the various industries which have located in the Bootheel fairly recently. Those included Triangle Conduit and Cable Co. in Sikeston, Southern Clay Inc., a subsidiary of Lowe's Inc. to be located northeast of Bloomfield, as well as some other smaller businesses.

Phil Shelton, director of the Bootheel Economic Development Council, informed the group of the recently completed labor survey for the Bootheel. Labor statistics on any town or area can be obtained through the BEDC.

Charles Royal of near Malden was appointed to head a committee to find prospects for a fulltime specialist in industrial development. There is currently no such specialist in the Bootheel area. Funds for the office would be obtained from the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission.

Marion Waggener of Charleston is chairman of the BIDC.

Batteries taken from used car lot

Two batteries were taken from automobiles on the used car lot at SeMo Motor Co., 417 N. Main St., between 5 p.m. Monday and 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The batteries were valued at $35 each, according to police.

A back window worth $150 was broken out of a car on the lot during the same time period, police said.

Assessment forms mailed

BENTON — Scott County Assessor William F. "Bill" Ferrell has announced that the first part of Sikeston's personal property assessment sheets were mailed Monday and the remaining part should be in the mail before the end of the week.

In asking that the assessment sheets be filled out and returned as soon as possible, Ferrell pointed out that household goods are no longer included in the assessment.

All that is necessary to list now is the make and model of cars or trucks owned. A letter of instruction is included with the assessment sheets, but if any questions arise, he said his office will be glad to receive calls.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is responding to President Ford's renewed drive for his economic program with quick action on tax relief while entangling his energy program in dispute. In a no-retreat statement opening his news conference Tuesday, Ford said he will put into effect without congressional help his tariff on imported oil and would veto any mandatory gasoline rationing legislation.

AN EXPRESSION OF DEVOTION

Every funeral director realizes that in the funeral service members of the bereaved family are not only expressing their devotion to a departed member, but also letting the world know that someone worthy of a pause in their activities has passed on. That is why we have designed our funeral home in a manner to give meaning to this consideration and why, as unobtrusively as possible, we endeavor to give sympathetic understanding to their commitment.

SHS ends skid

Vangalee West's best game of the year helped the Sikeston Bulldogs hold off a scrappy bunch of Meridian Bobcats 60-56 to break a five-game losing streak. After an early 10-8 deficit, the hosts reeled off ten consecutive points and never trailed in a ragged offensive ballgame that featured 55 turnovers.

The Bulldogs were shooting poorly, finishing with 42 percent, and the shorter Bobcats were rebounding well throughout the contest. As a matter of fact, the visitors cut their own throats with 33 turnovers, as their record dropped to 4-10.

West led all scorers with his fifteen points. He has scored more this season, but the ballhandling of the 5-11 senior was critical in the third period when Maridian threw a fullcourt zone press on their. West also swiped passes, grabbed rebounds and doled out assists on the Sikeston fast break, as the Bulldogs backed into their sixth victory to go with seven defeats. Marc Eaves led Sikeston's rebounders with 15. Ed Holhubner and Carlos Hyte had a dozen apiece for the losers. The teams tied on the boards, 34-34.

Holhubner also led Bobcat scoring with 13 points, a figure matched by Anthony Humble. Eaves scored 14 to follow West's figure, Steve Burchfield had a dozen.

It was not an inspiring win. It gave no visions of a pending upset Friday over Lilbourn, but the victory was sweet, nonetheless. The Bulldogs were visibly nervous and pressing throughout the contest, and missed easy shot after easy shot, but then with the way things have gone recently, you can hardly blame them. They'll be shooting for the 500 mark when they travel to Lilbourn Friday, a none too envious task. But, the team that has given such an all-out effort, will keep on plugging and hope to recapture the winning magic that they possessed earlier in the year.

Meridian scored 11 straight unanswered points in the third period and coasted to a victory over the Sikeston Bulldogs junior varsity team here Tuesday night. Sikeston's record is now 5-4.

SHS' Steve Birchfield (10) draws a foul from a Meridian high school cager during action at the Sikeston field house Tuesday night. The Bulldogs took the measure of their Illinois visitors and ended a five game losing skid.

Robinson leads LHS

CHARLESTON — The Daily Standard's top rated Lilbourn Panthers relied on their all-state junior, Frankie Robinson, Tuesday night and the talented 6-foot-1 sharp shooter didn't disappoint any of his followers.

Robinson, displaying the same poise and coolness that earned him respect during the class AA state tournament last season and later gained him all-state recognition, pumped in a 25 footer with three players hanging on to give Lilbourn new life and a 65-65 tie at the end of regulation play and then sank a 30 footer with one second left in the game from the top of the key to give the Panthers a hard fought 69-67 decision.

The victory extended the Panthers win streak to 16 games this season and 27 over a two season span. Lilbourn 's last defeat came at the hands of North Pemiscot.

Robinson ended the game with 20 points and shared game honors with teammate Earnest McFerren. Det Treadwell and Archie Boyd added 12 and 11 points respectively to round out a balanced Panther offense.

In one of the top games of the year and the closest for Lilbourn yet, it was a blue and gold mad scramble from start to finish.

With the lead see-sawing back and forth throughout the first 23 minutes of hoarse excitement, Charleston finally inched into the lead at 65-63 with only 16 seconds remaining on the clock and had a one-and-one situation at their own free throw line.

But Mother Luck doomed the first shot, Lilbourn gathered in the rebound and with three seconds left, Frankie Robinson lofted a 25-footer that swished the net and sent the game into over-time, tied at 65-65.

The overtime period saw Lilbourn take the opening tip with Treadwell getting a quick two points to put the Panthers on top 67-65. Both teams then traded missed shots before Charleston made a fast-break down court to tie it up again at 67-67. Then the Panther poise took over with ball control to play for the last shot. And literally a last second one at that.

Again it was Frankie Robinson who with one second remaining, spun around from above the key, 30-feet away, and p oked it through for the Lilbourn victory 69-67. Charleston's Ricky Frazier took game honors with 30 points Charleston's record dropped to 12 & 4.

Charleston did salvage the JV game with a 47-43 decision over Lilbourn. Greg Johnson posted 13 to lead the Bluejays, and Calvin Burton had 18 for the Panthers.

Hornets tame Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF — The Advance Hornets avenged an earlier loss to the PBHS Mules here Tuesday, 61-52. The Hornets lost to the Mules in the Christmas tournament at Bloomfield during quarterfinal round play after being seeded number one.

Joe David Cummins was the thorn in the side of the Mules as the 6 foot 2 senior forward scored 26 points to lead the Hornets offense.

Poplar Bluff had used a zone defense in the earlier loss and Advance was unable to get the needed scoring from the outside and lost 49-46 but this time around Cummins was on target and Poplar Bluff was felled.

Advance led throughout the contest and with an eight point lead in the fourth period the Hornets sat on the lead as the Mules stayed in their zone. Scott Harrell scored 23 points for the Mules.

Poplar Bluff outscored the Hornets from the field 22-20 but the Hornets shot in 21 points from the charity line to only eight for the Mules.

Poplar Bluff won the B game 49-26 as David Webb scored 15 and Steve Vavak scored 19 of the Hornets 26 points.

Woman claims to be NFL drug supplier

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis police have withheld comment on a 40-page intra-department memorandum outlining a young woman's allegations that she participated in a ring supplying drugs to players in the National Football League.

A copy of the memorandum was obtained Tuesday by The Associated Press from radio station KMOX. The St. Louis station said it received its copy from a law enforcement official.

Police would only say that the 19-year-old woman "is confined" and declined to further discuss the case.

The report sent to top police officials said that Roxie Ann Rice told of her activities while she was being questioned about her alleged use of a credit card stolen from defensive back Ken Houston of the Washington Redskins. Miss Rice was arrested Jan. 4 on fraud charges and was still in jail Tuesday night.

Among the NFL teams mentioned in the report were the Houston Oilers, St. Louis Cardinals, San Diego Chargers, Detroit Lions, Kansas City Chiefs, Cincinnati Bengals and the Redskins.

NFL Executive Director Jim Kensil said only that "there's nothing in what she has said that has been substantiated in any way."

A spokesman for the Cardinals said the team had informed the NFL security division of the report. He denied any knowledge of Miss Rice's activities.

Officials of the Chiefs and Chargers were unavailable for comment. Houston officials said they knew nothing of the allegations and therefore would have no comment, and a spokesman for the Lions said: "We have no comment. We have no idea what it's all about."

Joe Blair, a spokesman for the Redskins, said team officials "don't know anything about it." And he called the allegations "unbelievable, fantastic."

Mike Brown, assistant general manager of the Bengals, said, "This is the first I've heard of it. I wouldn't want to comment on it until I know more about it.

"Football's just like the rest of society," he said. "We've probably got some problems

SHS ends skid

Vangalee West's best game of the year helped the Sikeston Bulldogs hold off a scrappy bunch of Meridian Bobcats 60-56 to break a five-game losing streak. After an early 10-8 deficit, the hosts reeled off ten consecutive points and never trailed in a ragged offensive ballgame that featured 55 turnovers.

The Bulldogs were shooting poorly, finishing with 42 percent, and the shorter Bobcats were rebounding well throughout the contest. As a matter of fact, the visitors cut their own throats with 33 turnovers, as their record dropped to 4-10.

West led all scorers with his fifteen points. He has scored more this season, but the ballhandling of the 5-11 senior was critical in the third period when Maridian threw a fullcourt zone press on their. West also swiped passes, grabbed rebounds and doled out assists on the Sikeston fast break, as the Bulldogs backed into their sixth victory to go with seven defeats. Marc Eaves led Sikeston's rebounders with 15. Ed Holhubner and Carlos Hyte had a dozen apiece for the losers. The teams tied on the boards, 34-34.

Holhubner also led Bobcat scoring with 13 points, a figure matched by Anthony Humble. Eaves scored 14 to follow West's figure, Steve Burchfield had a dozen.

It was not an inspiring win. It gave no visions of a pending upset Friday over Lilbourn, but the victory was sweet, nonetheless. The Bulldogs were visibly nervous and pressing throughout the contest, and missed easy shot after easy shot, but then with the way things have gone recently, you can hardly blame them. They'll be shooting for the 500 mark when they travel to Lilbourn Friday, a none too envious task. But, the team that has given such an all-out effort, will keep on plugging and hope to recapture the winning magic that they possessed earlier in the year.

Meridian scored 11 straight unanswered points in the third period and coasted to a victory over the Sikeston Bulldogs junior varsity team here Tuesday night. Sikeston's record is now 5-4.

Woman claims to be NFL drug supplier

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis police have withheld comment on a 40-page intra-department memorandum outlining a young woman's allegations that she participated in a ring supplying drugs to players in the National Football League.

A copy of the memorandum was obtained Tuesday by The Associated Press from radio station KMOX. The St. Louis station said it received its copy from a law enforcement official.

Police would only say that the 19-year-old woman "is confined" and declined to further discuss the case.

The report sent to top police officials said that Roxie Ann Rice told of her activities while she was being questioned about her alleged use of a credit card stolen from defensive back Ken Houston of the Washington Redskins. Miss Rice was arrested Jan. 4 on fraud charges and was still in jail Tuesday night.

Among the NFL teams mentioned in the report were the Houston Oilers, St. Louis Cardinals, San Diego Chargers, Detroit Lions, Kansas City Chiefs, Cincinnati Bengals and the Redskins.

NFL Executive Director Jim Kensil said only that "there's nothing in what she has said that has been substantiated in any way."

A spokesman for the Cardinals said the team had informed the NFL security division of the report. He denied any knowledge of Miss Rice's activities.

Officials of the Chiefs and Chargers were unavailable for comment. Houston officials said they knew nothing of the allegations and therefore would have no comment, and a spokesman for the Lions said: "We have no comment. We have no idea what it's all about."

Joe Blair, a spokesman for the Redskins, said team officials "don't know anything about it." And he called the allegations "unbelievable, fantastic."

Mike Brown, assistant general manager of the Bengals, said, "This is the first I've heard of it. I wouldn't want to comment on it until I know more about it.

"Football's just like the rest of society," he said. "We've probably got some problems

Dear Editor:

Nero fiddled while Rome burned - but the lesson this taught - President Ford did not learn - with skies in Colorado - A pleasure trail he did carve - while the economy of his nation - starved and starved and starved - the largest criminal Ford is lacking - how long shall we give him backing + Mr. Ford shall be remembered - for the things he never did - while the problem of the man he pardoned - was all those things he hid - if this is the best we can do - for a president - there'll be no use of wondering where our country went - while searching through my memory - for something useful Ford has done- and comeing up with nothing - I stopped to chew my gum.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I have been asked: Has the Communist Party made any progress the past ten years in its effort to subvert the United States of America?

Judge for yourself.

The forty -five "CURRENT COMMUNIST GOALS" listed below appeared in the Congressional Record of January 10, 1963.

1. U.S. acceptance of coexistance as the only alternative to atomic war.
2. U.S. willingness to capitulate in prefernce to engageing in atomic war.
3. Develop the illusion that total disarmament by the United States would be a demonstration of moral strength.
4. Permit free trade between all nations regardless of Communist affiliation and regardless of whether or not items could be used for war.
5. Extension of long term loans to Russia and Soviet Satellites.
6. Provide American aid to all nations regardless of Communist domination.
7. Grant recognition of Red China. Adminssion of Red China to the U.N.
8. Prolong the conferences to ban atomic tests because the U.S. has agreed to suspend tests as long as negotiatio s are in progress.
9. Set up East and West Germany as separate states in spite of Khrushchev's promise in 1955 to settle the Germany question by free elections under supervision of the U.N.
10. Allow all Soviet satellites individual representation in the U.N.
11. Promote the U.N. as the only hope for mankind. If its charter is rewritten, demand that it be set up as a one-world government with its own independent armed forces.
12. Resist any attempt to outlaw the Communist Party.
13. Do away with all loyalty oaths.
14. Continue togive Russia access to the U S. Patent Office.
15. Capture one or both of the political parties in the United States.
16. Use technical decisions of the courts to weaken basic American institutions by claiming their activities violate civil rights.
17. Use technical decisions of the courts to weaken basi c American institutions by claiming their activities violate civil rights.
17. Get control of the schools. Use them as transmission belts for socialism and current Communist progaganda. Soften the curriculum. Get control of teachers associations. Put the party line in text books.
18. Gain control of all student newspapers.
19. Use student riots to foment public protests against programs or organizations which are under communist attack.
20. Infiltrate the press, get control of book-review assignments, editorial writing, policy- making positions.
21. Gain control ofkey positions in radio, TV and motion pictures.
22. Continue discrediting American culture by degrading all forms of artistic expression. An American Communist cell was told to "eliminate all good sculpture from parks and buildings, substitute shapless, awkward and meaningless forms."
23. Control art critics and directors of museums. "Our plan is to promote ugliness, repulsive, meaningless art."
24. Eliminate all laws governing obscenity by calling them "censor-ship" and a violation of free speech and free press.
25. Break down cultural standards of morality by promoting pornography and obscenity in books, magazines, motion pictures, radio and T.V.
26. Present homo-sexuality, degeneracy and promiscuity as "normal, natural, healthy."
27. Infiltrate the churches and replace revealed religion with "social" religion. Discredit the Bible and emphasize the need for intellectual maturity which does not need a religious "crutch."
28. Eliminate prayer or any phase of religious expression in the schools on the ground that it violates the principal of "separation of church and state."
29. Discredit the American Constitution by calling it inadequate, old fashioned, out of step with modern needs, a hinderance to cooperation between nations on a world wide basis.
30. Discredit the American founding fathers. Present them as selfish aristocrats who had no concern for the "common man."
31. Belittle all forms of American culture and discourage the teaching of American historyon the ground that it was only a minor part of the "big picture." Give more emphasis to Russian history since the communists took over.
32. Support any socialist movement to give centralized control over any part of the culture- education, social agencies, welfare programs, mental health clinics, etc.
33. Eliminate all laws or proceedures which interfere with the operation of the communist apparatus.
34. Eliminate the House Committee on Un-American Activities.
35. Discredit and eventually dismantle the F.B.I.
36. Infiltrate and gain control of more unions.
37. Infiltrate and gain control of big business.
38. Transfer some of the powers of arrest from the police and to social agencies. Treat all behavorial problems as psychiatric disorders which no one but psychiatrists can understand.
39. Dominate the psychiatric profession and use mental health laws as a means of gaining coersive control over those who oppose the colmunist goals.
40. Discredit the family as an institution. Encourage promisciuity and easy divorce.
41. Emphasize the need to raise children away from the negative influence of parents. Attribute prejudices, mental blocks and retarding of children to suppressive influence of parents.
42. Create the impression that violence and insurrection are legitimate aspects of the American tradition; that students and special interests groups should rise up and use "united force" to solve economic, political or social problems.
43. Overthrow all colonial governments before native populations are ready for self government.
44. Internationalize the Panama Canal.
45. Repeal the Connally Reservation so the U. S. cannot prevent the World Court from seizing jurisdiction over domestic problems. Give the World Court jurisdiction over nations and individuals alike.

Sincerely,
Fred W. Bender

Dear Sir;

I wish to thank you for each line of Poetry you've so faithfully printed. It may be one of the oldest forms of writing but it is still the most beautiful. Here is one of mine I wish you'd print.

LAST REQUEST

Whenever I go, to eternal rest
Wrapped tightly in a shroud
Will you anchor-down my coffin
And read my service LOUD
Bear me to the country side
And in the gravesite throw me
Used doublefolds of rock and sod
For you have got to show me
I never believed a thing I saw
Nor anything I've read
I'm from the beautiful Show-Me-State

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures prices were lower in early dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

On the opening, soybeans were 6 to 11 cents a bushel lower, January 6.94; wheat was 3 to 9 lower, March 3.90; corn was 2 to 4 lower, March 3.10 and oats were 1¼ lower to ½ higher, March 1.54½.

Beginning Jan. 1, workers who are not covered by a pension plan can set up individual retirement accounts (IRA). These IRAs are tax deductible and the interest earned on the account can accumulate tax free.

State law in Missouri regulates the length of time a business can conduct a "going out of business" sale. A citizen, however, may file complaints with the Missouri attorney general if he feels a sale has been going on for an unreasonable amount of time.

Use small, tightly capped, metal, film cans to make duplicate sets of "sound cans" for children. Have a child match the sound of one can with its mate in the other set. It teaches children to concentrate and listen; something some adults have missed.

Scale, as well as beauty, is important when selecting chairs. Chairs should fit the dimensions of people using them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"ROUSING WELCOME" PART ONE

Dear Editor:

The Enterprise Courier of Charleston, Mo. welcomed our new county court, not with a unifying editorial (which Charleston and Miss. County are badly in need of) but with a front page divisive half story with errors. Art continued to keep this community divided while united Sikeston businesses, conquers Charlestonian's pocketbooks one by one, thereby adding to the decaying process of the community that serves Art.

Mr. Art Wallhousen raised the very sensitive highly explosive issue of Nepotism with these front page headlines (son in law to earn $900 monthly) (county court hires kin to run ambulance service). Art did not headline (sheriff Simmons daughter hired as his secretary and his wife hired in collectors office while another Simmons relative sells county the Lions share of equipment). Another likely headline that did not appear-(Enterprise Courier gives free front page coverage to the political machine with pictures-while charging their opponents for the back page). The above facts makes Art's lesson in Nepotism a joke does it not?

Bill Woods was not hired by the county court as Art's misleading headlines stated, he was hired by Sheriff Simmons who had already placed more than 50 percent of the responsibility of the ambulance service with him.

PART TWO

"PAY NOW OR DIE LATER"

Before the new court took over, the policy of the ambulance service was "pay now or die later for the poor", In one year this policy created a sizeable "s" list who must pay cash before they could board an ambulance. I have the list of these names. This economically depressed group of people were stonewalled by the old court and Sheriff Simmons. We aid these people in many ways but should we not have enough compassion in an emergency to give ambulance service to those who cannot pay? I would rather have a hundred free than to leave one to die. I applaud this court for having the guts to make this change knowing the wrath and criticism they would receive, especially, from the once powerful, but now broken scattered remnants of the old political machine. Art told me he would not print the list of the names who were stonewalled by the previous administration, nor would he print this letter.

Does not the above facts prove that Art did not bury the pre-election controversial hatchet that he was the first to use? And that he is still swinging his slanted editorial a::? But he may have swung it to hard this time and that mindless ax may make a complete circle and hit the one who swung it.

I think Sheriff Simmons, his wife, daughter, and Bill Woods, Judge Hurley, Judge Adkisson and Judge Bennett are all fine capable people. I hope these people and all of us puts ourselves above this petty editorial and that we all live and work in peace instead of responding with hatred and anger, and confine these troublemaking tactics within the walls of the Enterprise Courier.

Dear Charlie:

Just received your good editorial of January 9 on the "open window" bill through the Missouri Press Clipping Service.

It is an excellent editorial, Charlie.

I surely appreciate your publishing this good editorial, because it informs the public of its stake in this legislation and will be influential in building support for it.

With best regards.

Sincerely yours,

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures prices were lower in early dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

On the opening, soybeans were 6 to 11 cents a bushel lower, January 6.94; wheat was 3 to 9 lower, March 3.90; corn was 2 to 4 lower, March 3.10 and oats were 1¼ lower to ½ higher, March 1.54½.

Beginning Jan. 1, workers who are not covered by a pension plan can set up individual retirement accounts (IRA). These IRAs are tax deductible and the interest earned on the account can accumulate tax free.

State law in Missouri regulates the length of time a business can conduct a "going out of business" sale. A citizen, however, may file complaints with the Missouri attorney general if he feels a sale has been going on for an unreasonable amount of time.

Use small, tightly capped, metal, film cans to make duplicate sets of "sound cans" for children. Have a child match the sound of one can with its mate in the other set. It teaches children to concentrate and listen; something some adults have missed.

Scale, as well as beauty, is important when selecting chairs. Chairs should fit the dimensions of people using them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"ROUSING WELCOME" PART ONE

Dear Editor:

The Enterprise Courier of Charleston, Mo. welcomed our new county court, not with a unifying editorial (which Charleston and Miss. County are badly in need of) but with a front page divisive half story with errors. Art continued to keep this community divided while united Sikeston businesses, conquers Charlestonian's pocketbooks one by one, thereby adding to the decaying process of the community that serves Art.

Mr. Art Wallhousen raised the very sensitive highly explosive issue of Nepotism with these front page headlines (son in law to earn $900 monthly) (county court hires kin to run ambulance service). Art did not headline (sheriff Simmons daughter hired as his secretary and his wife hired in collectors office while another Simmons relative sells county the Lions share of equipment). Another likely headline that did not appear-(Enterprise Courier gives free front page coverage to the political machine with pictures-while charging their opponents for the back page). The above facts makes Art's lesson in Nepotism a joke does it not?

Bill Woods was not hired by the county court as Art's misleading headlines stated, he was hired by Sheriff Simmons who had already placed more than 50 percent of the responsibility of the ambulance service with him.

PART TWO

"PAY NOW OR DIE LATER"

Before the new court took over, the policy of the ambulance service was "pay now or die later for the poor". In one year this policy created a sizeable "s" list who must pay cash before they could board an ambulance. I have the list of these names. This economically depressed group of people were stonewalled by the old court and Sheriff Simmons. We aid these people in many ways but should we not have enough compassion in an emergency to give ambulance service to those who cannot pay? I would rather have a hundred free than to leave one to die. I applaud this court for having the guts to make this change knowing the wrath and criticism they would receive, especially, from the once powerful, but now broken scattered remnants of the old political machine. Art told me he would not print the list of the names who were stonewalled by the previous administration, nor would he print this letter.

Does not the above facts prove that Art did not bury the pre-election controversial hatchet that he was the first to use? And that he is still swinging his slanted editorial ax? But he may have swung it to hard this time and that mindless ax may make a complete circle and hit the one who swung it.

I think Sheriff Simmons, his wife, daughter, and Bill Woods, Judge Hurley, Judge Adkisson and Judge Bennett are all fine capable people. I hope these people and all of us puts ourselves above this petty editorial and that we all live and work in peace instead of responding with hatred and anger, and confine these troublemaking tactics within the walls of the Enterprise Courier.

Dear Charlie:

Just received your good editorial of January 9 on the "open window" bill through the Missouri Press Clipping Service.

It is an excellent editorial, Charlie.

I surely appreciate your publishing this good editorial, because it informs the public of its stake in this legislation and will be influential in building support for it.

With best regards.

Letters to the Editor

To The People of Stoddard County,

This year the Missouri State Commission have ordered Stoddard County to raise the valuation from thirty per cent to thirty-three and one third per cent. This means an additional six million dollars increase in valuation on real estate and personal property. The law states when there is as much as a ten per cent raise the tax should be adjusted accordingly, but it does not state what the penalty would be if this is not complied with. Most of us know we usually pay more taxes when we have a raise in valuation. The Tax Commission says they arrive at this ratio by checking the real estate transfers made during the past year. In the past few years I've noticed an increase on sales of some poorest land in the county, mostly hilly, gullies, and wooded areas. These sales are usually made to persons living out of the county who have no desire to make a living off the land or even live here in many cases. This is mostly a investment, week-end home or a hobby farm of some sort. This is these people's business of course, as I'm sure they can afford the high price they pay for this land. But this is also what gives these guys in Jefferson City the idea that Stoddard County has very valuable land. We do have several thousand acres of the best land in the county, but as a whole the county is made up of small farmers and small livestock growers. We in no way compare with some of our neighboring counties, some with their large tracts of level land or others that are close to the larger cities with more industries to compensate for a raise in valuation. In other words the majority of the people in this county have to depend on the land in one form or another for a living. Here is a quote from a letter received from the Commission: "The Commission feels that during the high p rice of cattle, we and you as assessing officials have given the cattle and hog raisers a break during the past years. Todays market value of both cattle and hogs, at this Commissions recommended average of $40.00 per head for cattle and $10.00 per head for hogs listed at one third of value would continue to give farmers a slight break on these items." Any of you farmers that have sold either of these items lately know they must be refering to super market prices instead of stock markets prices. It's a big laugh, only not too funny to the farmer.

We have been fortunate in the last few years, even this past year, in a natural growth in the county, such as new homes and businesses. We should pick up several tax dollars in this manner, plus our usual taxes. I, as one member of the County Court, am sick and tired of these orders from the fellows in the high places, let the chips fall where they may. I believe the assessors are doing a pretty good job, and I'm not for a raise of any kind. The County Court has control over only forty cents on every hundred dollar valuation, the rest going into school, state, township and special road district funds. Last year the County Court lowered the county's taxes five cents on a hundred dollar valuation and we hope to do this again this year. Stoddard County is in real good financial shape and we don't neec the extra money to operate on and we try to watch the county spending so we can stay in good shape. In these days of inflation and recession, I think the federal state and county officials neec tighten their belts along with the taxpayers, after all you, the taxpayers, are the ones who foot the bill for all three of these agencies.

Jack Ward
Judge First District
County Court

Book Review

THE MOUNTAINS AT THE BOTTOM OF THE WORLD
by Ian Cameron
Avon 21402 - $1.25 - Fiction

THE MOUNTAINS AT THE BOTTOM OF THE WORLD is a tale of excitement and adventure amid spectacular settings, by the author of Island at the Top of the World – Walt Disney's 1974 Christmas movie. The story here is of a team of men and women which sets out to probe a desolate volcanic area of South America in search of a possible 20th century survivor of prehistoric men.

Action-packed, hair-raising fiction, THE MOUNTAINS AT THE BOTTOM OF THE WORLD is equally plausible and informative about places most people will never be able to explore themselves.

IF WE DIMMED 10 PER CENT

NEW YORK (AP) — A recent article for "Lighting Design and Application," the journal of the Society of Illuminating Engineers, estimated that if all America were equipped with dimmers, and dimmed down only 10 per cent, it would save 100 million barrels of oil per year.

Frankly speaking

Budget of major concern

WASHINGTON-The federal budget for fiscal 1976 will be presented soon, and how it is handled will have important consequences for the state of our economy. Although in normal times a balanced budget is the desired goal, the fiscal 1976 budget will show a substantial deficit.

There are many reasons why the budget may not be balanced, some of which are controllable and some of which are not. It is important to realize that there are two parts to a budget: expenditures and revenues. Deficits can be caused by too much spending, two few revenues, or both.

Looking first at government spending, about $340 billion would be required in fiscal 1976 to maintain roughly the same level of services as in this fiscal year. This year's spending estimate is about $310 billion, so the difference of $30 billion–about 10 per cent–is due almost entirely to inflation.

But if inflation is worse than 10 per cent, as it very well may be, the only choice would be to increase spending or to cut back on programs. There will be some of both, as we seek to get the greatest value for the taxpayer's dollar.

Another factor which could increase spending is the recession. If unemployment continues to climb, more money may be required for public service jobs and unemployed benefits. Inflation and recession both cause spending to go up.

On the side of revenues, recession is also causing problems. If the economy were functioning well, tax collections could be as high as $360 billion–more than enough to balance the budget. But people out of work are not paying taxes, and businesses with falling sales are not paying as much in taxes as they otherwise might.

A tax cut to get the economy rolling again would also decrease revenues in the current fiscal year. (But if this has the expected effect of decreasing unemployment and increasing production, some of this revenue loss would be made up in future years as tax collections revived from recession levels.) So revenues in fiscal 1976 will be less than expected.

The President originally wanted a budget that would balance spending and tax collections at $340 billion. But because of economic conditions and the policies used to control them, spending could climb to $345 billion while revenues fall off to $310 billion or less.

That same budget, if unemployment and inflation rates were more like those in the 1960s, would be in balance or even in surplus. It is the surrounding economic climate which makes the crucial difference between surplus and deficit.

Budget dificits are always a matter of legitimate concern. Any deficit must be financed by government borrowing which can cause interest rates to go up. In addition, as we have experienced in other times, a deficit can be inflationary. But neither of these conditions–higher interest rates or increased inflation–will necessarily occur at this time because of the nature of our economic conditions.

There is excess capacity in both the money markets and industry, so a budget deficit during a severe recession should boost the economy without causing too serious side effects. A deficit, even a much smaller one that we are likely to have, would have far graver consequences during a boom, when there is "too much money chasing too few goods."

Dr. Lamb

Silicone injections can harm you

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate your explaining to me how a silicone injection is done for breast enlargement and if it is dangerous as some people say. Would it cause problems in later years? What kind of doctor would I go to for this kind of procedure?

DEAR READER — Silicone injections are not recommended for breast enlargement. There have been a number of complications reported from the procedure. Some black market efforts have also been made with impure silicone which makes this even more dangerous.

I am sympathetic with a woman's desire to be attractive, although I think too many women place too much emphasis on this aspect of their figure when they could do better in life to spend more time developing their personality. Those who really need or feel they must have an operation for breast enlargement should see a plastic surgeon who can implant silicone, not inject it. The implants are of several different varieties, but the end result is a surgically-placed prosthesis behind the normal breast tissue.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it possible to alternate insulin and Orinase? I've been on both and have both on hand. I'm on Orinase now.

DEAR READER — While many doctors prescribe oral pills for diabetes, I must tell you that the American Medical Assn., The Diabetic Assn. and the Food and Drug Administration have all advised against their use.

Most diabetics who can have their blood sugar controlled by the oral medicines can do as well, or according to statistics even better, when managed by diet alone.

The rub is many patients will not follow the doctor's advice about their diet and will not lose excess fat. Finally the doctor gives up and prescribes the pill thinking that it will be better than nothing — but even that is debatable.

There is another psychological factor involved. Doctors are human, believe it or not, and they want to do something about the patient's problems. It is difficult for them to do nothing. So they prescribe sometimes when they might just as well have done nothing. The patient is usually happier because he wants the doctor to do something.

I do not think patients should change their insulin and pills around without their doctor's approval. I would never recommend mixing the oral tablets and insulin on your own.

The two medicines are not the same. I have had readers write and tell me I was wrong about stating that one can't take insulin by mouth. But those oral preparations are not insulin and quite apparently do not do all the things insulin does. Perhaps more important they may also do some things that insulin doesn't do that may not be good for the body in all cases. So, don't confuse the oral medicines used to lower blood sugar with the real thing — insulin.

In general, for mild or moderate diabetics I am all for doing everything you can with diet first, particularly eliminating any excess obesity, if any is present. Then, if it seems indicated, insulin can be used. I want to emphasize, though, that many abnormal diabetic-type sugar tolerance tests become entirely normal after elimination of obesity. Correcting the obesity goes to the heart of the problem in correcting a major factor causing the condition which is preferable to using artificial treatment.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Blood Sugar" booklet.

Four consecutive evenings of basketball had a telling effect upon Sikeston's quintet in Friday's semi-final action of the third annual Poplar Bluff invitational when the Bulldogs dropped a 58-47 decision to the host club. The defeat will send the Bulldogs to face Annapolis, 86-64 loser to Jackson in a contest tonight for third place.

Portageville -- Mrs. Berta Haret, 63, wife of Henry Hart, Route 3, Portageville, died in the Delta Community Hospital Sunday. She had a stroke about two weeks ago which partially paralyzed her and January 18 she was admitted to the hospital for treatment.

A few brief seconds after she had asked her group on the platform at the Church of God in Bertrand, Sunday, to sing "When the Saints Go Marchin In," Mrs. Florance Christine Hall, 69, wife of Arch Hall and a tireless and faithful worker in church activities, slumped to the floor and died before medical aid could reach her.

Stork Club. Babies born at the local hospital Saturday were: A baby girl to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flanagan of New Madrid; a son to Mr. and Mrs. Glynn Sullivan, 506 East Center street; and a son to Mr. and Mrs. William Swacker, 900 Vernon street.

Babies born Sunday include: A son to Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jones of Matthews; a son to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Meldrum; a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dillender, 711 East Gladys; and a son to Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hargroves of Morehouse.

Bond to appear on Merv Griffin Show

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond donned his sunglasses and flew to Hollywood, Calif., today for the taping of the Merv Griffin television show.

A spokesman for the governor's office said the topic of the discussion was not yet known.

The spokesman said governors from several other states will be present for the program. The program is to be broadcast about a week after the taping session.

Merchants elect officers

The Downtown Metro Association elected new officers Jan. 7.

Allen Harris of Harris Pharmacy was elected president. Other officers are Fred Long of Sterling's, vice president; Donnie Hibbard of Fred's, secretary; and Bill Pickett of Pickett's Shoe Store, treasurer.

Board members elected for three-year terms are Allen Harris, Bill Pickett and Fred Long. RalphMcElroy of Buckner-Ragsdale will serve the unexpired term of the late Vernon Martin of Sterling's.

Malone and Hyde proves big gainer

Malone & Hyde, Inc. proved a big gainer on the New York Stock Exchange.

M&H piled up 1 5/8 to 19 1/8 as investors continued buying the stock in the wake of an excellent earnings report the previous week. The No. 3 food distributor in the nation has come back after trading as low as 13 last year, mainly influenced by general market conditions.

Ben F. Ward, vice president of research for Morgan, Keegana and Co., in a new study on M&H estimated fiscal 1975 earnings at $1.80 per share. That would compare with $1.38 in fiscal 1974 from all operations, including a loss in discontinued catalog operations. Earnings per share in fiscal 1974 from continuing operations were $1.47.

Ward's study pointed out that, since 1965, sales at Malone & Hyde have advanced at the compounded rate of 12.3 per cent annually, while earnings per share from continuing operations have compounded at 15 per cent annually.

George Winsett, account executive for Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., called M& H "a tremendous growth stock."

Winsett said that if the company paid a bigger dividend, the shares would move on up. At one time, M&H hit 37. The firm paid a 10 per cent stock dividend late last year.

At present, M&H shares are yielding only about 2 1/2 percent.

Larry Harris

Accountant joins local firm

Larry D. Harris Monday became a partner in the public accounting firm of W.W. Fitzgerald, 517 Park Ave.

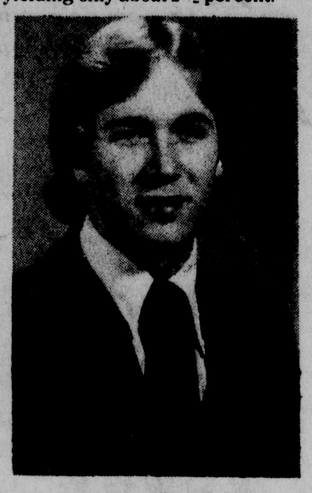
Harris holds a Tennessee Certified Public Accounting license, and Arkansas CPA license and is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

For the past three years, Harris, formerly of Morehouse, has been employed as financial vice president of Varco-Pruden Metal Buildings Co., whose corporate offices are in Memphis, Tenn.

He has also been employed as treasurer of the Coca Cola Bottling Co. in Little Rock, Ark., and Ernst and Ernst Certified Public Accounting firm in Memphis, Tenn.

Harris is the son of Don and Apal Harris of Morehouse, a 1958 graduate of Morehouse High School and a 1963 graduate of the University of Missouri.

He is married to the former Sue Stout and they have three daughters, Tricia, 5; Jodi, 10; and Melissa, 12.



Denny alcorn

Alcorn joins staff

Denny Alcorn has joined the sales staff of C.D. Alcorn Agency, Inc. Realtors, 503 South Main St.

He will specialize in the selling of residential, farm and commercial property.

Alcorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Alcorn of Sikeston, graduated from Scott Central High School in 1971 and attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau.

Nelson attends refresher course

NORWICH, N.Y.--Thomas H. Nelson of Palatine, Ill., a district manager for Norwich Products, a division of Morton-Norwich Products, Inc., recently participated in a sales refresher course at the division's home office in Norwich.

The program included mini-courses on effective listening and "selling as a communication process" and a tour of the company's research facilities, emphasizing pharmaceutical research on over-the-counter drug products.

Nelson, a native of Sikeston, Mo., was a sales representative for Thomas J. Lipton Co. before joining Norwich Products in 1970. In 1973, he was promoted to manager of a sales district headquartered in Chicago. He and his wife have four children.

Norwich Products Division markets well-known consumer health aids.

Crews to head group

Raymond Crews of Welsh Funeral Home in Sikeston was elected president of Southeast Missouri Funeral Directors Jan. 8 at the Top of the Hill Restaurant in Cape Girardeau.

Other officers are Bruce Dockins of McComb's Funeral Home in Jackson, vice president; Mrs. Leo Basler of Basler Funeral Home in Ste. Genevieve, secretary and treasurer. Leo Basler was elected director of the board.

About 65 persons were on hand to hear Assistant Attorney General Harvey Tettlebaum of Jefferson, who discussed the pre-need bill pertaining to trust plans and burial insurance.

Also attending were state president Harvey DeLisle of Portageville; first vice president Marvin Bowles; Charles Arnold, secretary of the embalming board; Carlton Lorberg of Cape Girardeau, member of the embalming board; and Fulton Caulkin of St. Louis, director from the Sixth District. The next meeting will be at Dexter.

Sikeston men attend meeting

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.--Bob and Marvin K. Ralph of Bob Ralph Distributing Co., Inc., 1601 W. Malone Ave., Sikeston, Mo., were among those who attended the annual Anheuser-Busch sales convention which was held here Jan. 13 through 15.

More than 2,600 Anheuser-Busch wholesalers, wives and company marketing representatives were present for the yearly sales meeting to analyze marketing operations for the past year and to review sales, advertising and merchandising plans for 1975.

Top executives of the company spoke during the three-day meeting and included August A. Busch Jr., chairman of the board and chief executive officer; August A. Busch III, president; and Orion P. Burkhardt, vice president-marketing, brewing division.

Merchants elect officers

The Downtown Metro-Association elected new officers Jan. 7.

Allen Harris of Harris Pharmacy was elected president. Other officers are Fred Long of Sterling's, vice president; Donnie Hibbard of Fred's, secretary; and Bill Pickett of Pickett's Shoe Store, treasurer.

Board members elected for three-year terms are Allen Harris, Bill Pickett and Fred Long. RalphMcElroy of Buckner-Ragsdale will serve the unexpired term of the late Vernon Martin of Sterling's.

Malone and Hyde proves big gainer

Malone & Hyde, Inc. proved a big gainer on the New York Stock Exchange.

M&H piled up 1 5/8 to 19 1/8 as investors continued buying the stock in the wake of an excellent earnings report the previous week. The No. 3 food distributor in the nation has come back after trading as low as 13 last year, mainly influenced by general market conditions.

Ben F. Ward, vice president of research for Morgan, Keegana and Co., in a new study on M&H estimated fiscal 1975 earnings at $1.80 per share. That would compare with $1.38 in fiscal 1974 from all operations, including a loss in discontinued catalog operations. Earnings per share in fiscal 1974 from continuing operations were $1.47.

Ward's study pointed out that, since 1965, sales at Malone & Hyde have advanced at the compounded rate of 12.3 per cent annually, while earnings per share from continuing operations have compounded at 15 per cent annually.

George Winsett, account executive for Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., called M& H "a tremendous growth stock."

Winsett said that if the company paid a bigger dividend, the shares would move on up. At one time, M&H hit 37. The firm paid a 10 per cent stock dividend late last year.

At present, M&H shares are yielding only about 2 1/2 percent.

Larry Harris

Accountant joins local firm

Larry D. Harris Monday became a partner in the public accounting firm of W.W. Fitzgerald, 517 Park Ave.

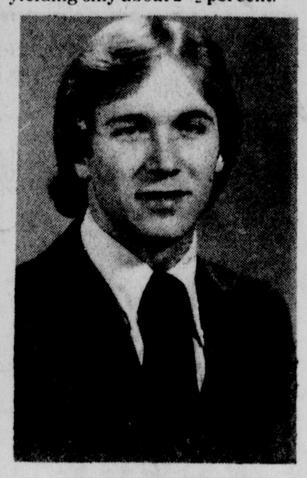
Harris holds a Tennessee Certified Public Accounting license, and Arkansas CPA license and is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

For the past three years, Harris, formerly of Morehouse, has been employed as financial vice president of Varco-Pruden Metal Buildings Co., whose corporate offices are in Memphis, Tenn.

He has also been employed as treasurer of the Coca Cola Bottling Co. in Little Rock, Ark., and Ernst and Ernst Certified Public Accounting firm in Memphis, Tenn.

Harris is the son of Don and Apal Harris of Morehouse, a 1958 graduate of Morehouse High School and a 1963 graduate of the University of Missouri.

He is married to the former Sue Stout and they have three daughters, Tricia, 5; Jodi, 10; and Melissa, 12.



Denny alcorn

Alcorn joins staff

Denny Alcorn has joined the sales staff of C.D. Alcorn Agency, Inc. Realtors, 503 South Main St.

He will specialize in the selling of residential, farm and commercial property.

Alcorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Alcorn of Sikeston, graduated from Scott Central High School in 1971 and attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau.

Nelson attends refresher course

NORWICH, N.Y.--Thomas H. Nelson of Palatine, Ill., a district manager for Norwich Products, a division of Morton-Norwich Products, Inc., recently participated in a sales refresher course at the division's home office in Norwich.

The program included mini-courses on effective listening and "selling as a communication process" and a tour of the company's research facilities, emphasizing pharmaceutical research on over-the-counter drug products.

Nelson, a native of Sikeston, Mo., was a sales representative for Thomas J. Lipton Co. before joining Norwich Products in 1970. In 1973, he was promoted to manager of a sales district headquartered in Chicago. He and his wife have four children.

Norwich Products Division markets well-known consumer health aids.

Crews to head group

Raymond Crews of Welsh Funeral Home in Sikeston was elected president of Southeast Missouri Funeral Directors Jan. 8 at the Top of the Hill Restaurant in Cape Girardeau.

Other officers are Bruce Dockins of McComb's Funeral Home in Jackson, vice president; Mrs. Leo Basler of Basler Funeral Home in Ste. Genevieve, secretary and treasurer. Leo Basler was elected director of the board.

About 65 persons were on hand to hear Assistant Attorney General Harvey Tettlebaum of Jefferson, who discussed the pre-need bill pertaining to trust plans and burial insurance.

Also attending were state president Harvey DeLisle of Portageville; first vice president Marvin Bowles; Charles Arnold, secretary of the embalming board; Carlton Lorberg of Cape Girardeau, member of the embalming board; and Fulton Caulkin of St. Louis, director from the Sixth District. The next meeting will be at Dexter.

Sikeston men attend meeting

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.--Bob and Marvin K. Ralph of Bob Ralph Distributing Co., Inc., 1601 W. Malone Ave., Sikeston, Mo., were among those who attended the annual Anheuser-Busch sales convention which was held here Jan. 13 through 15.

More than 2,600 Anheuser-Busch wholesalers, wives and company marketing representatives were present for the yearly sales meeting to analyze marketing operations for the past year and to review sales, advertising and merchandising plans for 1975.

Top executives of the company spoke during the three-day meeting and included August A. Busch Jr., chairman of the board and chief executive officer; August A. Busch III, president; and Orion P. Burkhardt, vice president-marketing, brewing division.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, January 22, the 22nd day of 1975. There are 343 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1901, England came to the end of an era with the death of Queen Victoria at the age of 82.

On this date — In 1517, Turkish troops captured the Egyptian city of Cairo.

In 1528, England and France declared war on the Holy Roman Emperor, Charles V.

In 1791, George Washington appointed commissioners to survey the District of Columbia.

In 1905, scores of Russians were killed as Cossacks and imperial army troops fired on demonstrators in St. Petersburg in Russia.

In 1917, President Woodrow Wilson proposed a League of Nations.

In 1944, during World War II, Allied troops landed on the Anzio beachead in Italy.

Ten years ago: Hundreds of Buddhists and students stoned the U.S. Information Service library in Saigon and battled with Vietnamese police who tried to drive them away.

Five years ago: President Nixon, in his State of the Union Message, urged the nation to stick with him in dealing with the Vietnam War.

One year ago: A White House spokesman said Nixon was ignoring demands that he resign and was determined not to be "consumed for another year" by Watergate.

Today's birthdays: Democratic Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana is 47 years old. Actress Ann Sothern is 64.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, January 22, the 22nd day of 1975. There are 343 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1901, England came to the end of an era with the death of Queen Victoria at the age of 82.

On this date — In 1517, Turkish troops captured the Egyptian city of Cairo.

In 1528, England and France declared war on the Holy Roman Emperor, Charles V.

In 1791, George Washington appointed commissioners to survey the District of Columbia.

In 1905, scores of Russians were killed as Cossacks and imperial army troops fired on demonstrators in St. Petersburg in Russia.

In 1917, President Woodrow Wilson proposed a League of Nations.

In 1944, during World War II, Allied troops landed on the Anzio beachead in Italy.

Ten years ago: Hundreds of Buddhists and students stoned the U.S. Information Service library in Saigon and battled with Vietnamese police who tried to drive them away.

Five years ago: President Nixon, in his State of the Union Message, urged the nation to stick with him in dealing with the Vietnam War.

One year ago: A White House spokesman said Nixon was ignoring demands that he resign and was determined not to be "consumed for another year" by Watergate.

Today's birthdays: Democratic Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana is 47 years old. Actress Ann Sothern is 64.

START A CHAIN RE-ACTION! ©

By placing an economical Want Ad in this newspaper, you start a chain reaction that is sometimes unbelievable! You'll be amazed at the avid readership of this, one of the most popular sections of the paper. And no matter what you are offering for sale, you are almost bound to receive an active response, which in turn will generate a meeting and very likely a sale. The result of this chain reaction is a happy new owner and you . . . the seller with a handful of cash! This is a good time to place those extras around your house on the market. Get things started by placing your ad today!
